KAMLOOPS, B.C., Dec. 7.—"I am using a car with potatoes at Ashcroft, B.C., on Wednesday morning. I have licence from the committee of action to ship and in that car be both 'B' and 'C' grade. If the committee of direction take the same action against me it took against the Chinese, Chung,"

Hammond declared the Control a costing Ashcroft growers $3.95 more to market their potatoes than it had in 1926 before the act was passed.

He intimated that intention to appeal the conviction of Man would be abandoned and that case would be made following the committee against him the constitutionality of the act be definitely determined.

AGAINST ACT Mayor S. C. Burton opened the session and cited several instances the act had worked to the disadvantage of the producer. E. Clark, also spoke against the act. Alderman, manager of the British Columbia Fruitlands, was also opposed.

S. S. George and E. Longridge, not enthusiastic were prepared to act a fair trial.

Colley, M.L.A., explained the act pointed out that it was not a private measure, but among those who had voted it was decided to call a meeting of growers and invite the act of control to a round table conference. They will be called as soon as board of control can make it meet to attend.

MAYS LANDING, N.J., Dec. 7.—Unable to arrive at a verdict after almost six hours deliberation, the jury in the Lillendahl murder case, was ordered locked up until tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock. The jury was called into court at 11 o'clock tonight and the defendants were there ahead of them. Mrs. Margaret Lillendahl, widow of the man she is accused of murdering, had spent the evening laughing and chatting with friends in the court room. Willis Beach, her reputed lover, and her co-defendant, had been waiting in his cell.

Both defendants showed evidence of extreme nervousness. "Have you reached a verdict?" Justice Campbell asked, and Mrs. Carrie Calkin, the silver-haired forewoman, shook her head.

As the jurors were led back upstairs to continue their deliberations throughout the night, the defendants were led to their cells.

NETHERLANDER IS IN ROLE OF PEACEMAKER

Will Try to Find Solution for Poland-Lithuania Break on Baltic

WALDEMARS SHOWS GREAT GAMENESS

Charges Poland With Persecution; Zaleski Asks Abolition of State of War

GENEVA, Dec. 7.—A European statesman who took active part in the Washington naval conference—Foreign Minister Beelaerts Van Blockland of the Netherlands—will seek a formula to solve the Polish-Lithuanian difficulty.

Van Blockland, representative of the Netherlands on the council of the League of Nations, was appointed by that body tonight as "special reporter" on the dispute after several hours of caustic oral attack and counter-attack on Premier Waldemars of Lithuania and Foreign Minister Zaleski of Poland.

Marshal Pilsudski, the Polish dictator, is expected Friday, and Van Blockland expects to have his report ready before the end of the present session of the council.

WINS FRIENDS Even if the game little Lithuanian premier did not win all members of the council over to the belief in his charges against Poland, he certainly won their admiration for his pluck, perseverance and the masterly manner in which he presented his bill of accusation, which included charges of persecution of Lithuanian clergymen in the Vilna districts and alleged conspiracies of the Polish state to overthrow the Lithuanian government.

ROOT OF TROUBLE Pleading Poland's side of the controversy, and in denying the charges of Waldemars, M. Zaleski assured the council that Poland only desired to dwell in peaceful relations with her neighbor, but found this difficult because Lithuania insists that a state of war exists between the two countries. Whatever else the council did, M. Zaleski said, he hoped it would hasten abolition of this technical state of war, because it was the root of all the trouble.

That Polish occupation of Vilna stands out boldly as the real cause of the crisis was the general opinion voiced when the council adjourned. M. Waldemars alluded several times with bitterness to the loss of the former capital, and it is believed that the problem of Vilna renders Van Blockland's task all the harder. He is hardly likely to recommend the return of Vilna, but is expected to propose immediate cessation of the "state of war" as essential to the reestablishment of friendly relations, and removal of the Baltic crisis as a danger to general European peace.

West and Central United States Suffer Seriously From the Cold Spell; Three Lose Lives; Five-Year-Old Dies Within Few Yards of Home

WINNIPEG, Dec. 7.—Believed to be snow-bound on the Minnesota prairies, two passenger trains which left Winnipeg for St. Paul early Tuesday evening were unreported at a late hour tonight.

A blizzard swept through Minnesota today and railway officials here are without definite information regarding the trains. The Great Northern train was reported as having passed Staples, Minn., but beyond that point no word had been received of its movement. No definite information could be secured of the Soo line train's movements.

Two trains which were scheduled to leave here during the evening were canceled, while trains from St. Paul and Minneapolis also were canceled.

THREE LOSE LIVES

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Dec. 7.—Aided by a mighty blizzard and sub-zero temperatures, winter entrenched itself over a great central area of the country today with effects of the offensive noted from the Canadian border to the Gulf of Mexico. Loss of several lives was attributed indirectly to the storm, and traffic of all kinds was delayed.

Borne from the Rocky Mountains by a stinging northwest wind the cold wave sent thermometers scurrying sharply downward from balmy temperatures of 60 that prevailed in some sections yesterday. More than a dozen mountain and mid-western states were winter-swept, with the storm lashing at the Texas coast, where winds of gale force, and freezing temperatures were predicted.

The blizzard was the most severe in recent years in some sections and new low record temperatures for the season were set.

Three persons lost their lives in a farmhouse fire in Oklahoma caused by the explosion of a gas stove that had been lighted in the night because of the cold snap.

BOY PERISHES GREAT FALLS, Mont., Dec. 7.—Sent to bring his 7-year-old sister from school, three blocks from his home, 5-year-old Theodore Hiesberg perished in Monday's blizzard, said reports received today from Dunmore. He is the only known victim of the state-wide storm.

A neighbor brought the girl home, but the body of the boy was found 100 yards from his home.

WORST IN YEARS

ST. PAUL, Minn., Dec. 7.—Minnesota and eastern Wisconsin tonight bore the brunt of the blizzard that has swept through the northwest states and west-central Canada since Monday with sub-zero temperatures in its wake.

Jumbling train schedules and impeding other traffic almost to a point of cessation, the storm continued in full fury tonight through most of Minnesota, with Minneapolis and St. Paul experiencing their worst storm in four years.

TRAIL MAN GUILTY LIQUOR CHARGE PAYS $300

OPERATIVES IN TRAIL CONVICT WILLIAM BODNER

Magistrate Disbelieved Evidence of Accused and His Wife

ORDERS HER TO LEAVE THE WITNESS STAND

Woman Admits Previous Bad Moral Character; Bodner Denies Sale

TRAIL, B.C., Dec. 7.—So colorful was the evidence of William Bodner and his wife, Jessie, defence witnesses in the trial of William Bodner on a charge of bootlegging today, that Magistrate Noble Blinn declared himself amazed that anyone should take so unlikely a tale into court. He found Bodner guilty and fined him $300 and costs.

After listening to the statements of Mrs. Bodner—admissions of previous bad moral character and a police record—and further statements on her bootlegging career in Trail in contrast to the testimony of previous defence witnesses, the magistrate declared her statements were a series of perjuries, declined to hear more, and ordered her to stand down.

When Mr. Bodner took the stand he made admissions of a previous police record, and admissions regarding his wife's character.

OFFICERS TESTIFY

Three witnesses were called for the prosecution and four for the defence. Daniel Barrach, declaring himself a provincial police officer under the liquor control board, submitted that on November 30 he bought drinks for himself, James Dean, another officer also under the liquor control board, and two other men, from William Bodner in the case operated by the accused and his wife in the Gulch. He said he paid $2 for drinks and got no change. He also criticized the small size of the drinks.

Constable Dean swore that he had seen Constable Barrach purchase the drinks, and had himself bought drinks for six from Mrs. Bodner on November 15 minutes after. He stated that John McMillan, who claimed to be a reporter for the Vancouver Sun, and P. McClements were in the party.

B. Downes, Trail chief of police, testified regarding the license on the premises and on his search for liquor, and subsequent arrest of Mr. Bodner.

John McMillan for the defence swore that he had been with the party, had seen drinks bought from Mrs. Bodner, but had seen no drinks bought or supplied by Mr. Bodner. Similar statements were made by P. McClements, the second witness. In answer to a question of the magistrate he admitted that from 17 to 23 drinks were bought altogether. All of them from Mrs. Bodner.

PREVIOUS RECORD

Mrs. Bodner claimed she sold all the drinks, and that her husband, though he knew where the liquor was kept, and assisted her in the cafe, had never sold any drinks. She admitted a previous conviction in Winnipeg on a disorderly house charge, said she had been bootlegging for two weeks in Trail. She swore that she had not bought a liquor for sale, but had sold it from one bottle left in her cafe by a stranger.

She maintained that her bootlegging was trivial—she had not had time to work the business up. Though advised that a previous witness had stated 17 drinks were bought on November 30 from her, she still denied selling from more than one bottle, and that her husband sold any.

Bodner flatly denied selling any liquor in Trail. He admitted a previous conviction on a liquor violation charge in Winnipeg, which he referred to casually as a business matter.

You'll Get Rid of Blackheads Sure

There is one simple, safe and sure way that never fails to get rid of blackheads, that is to dissolve them. To do this, get two ounces of peroxide powder from any drug store—sprinkle a little on a hot, wet cloth—rub over the blackheads briskly—wash the parts and you will be surprised how the blackheads have disappeared. Big blackheads, little blackheads, no matter where they are, simply dissolve and disappear. Blackheads are a mixture of dust and dirt and secretions that form in the pores of the skin. The peroxide powder and the water dissolve the blackheads so they wash right out, leaving the pores free and clean and in their natural condition.

Young People's at Rossland Enjoy a Real Sleigh Ride

ROSSLAND, B.C., Dec. 7.—The regular monthly social of the Young People's league of the United church Tuesday evening took the form of a sleigh ride to Sillia and return. About 40 of the young people, under the chaperonage of Mr. and Mrs. Alex. Kelly, went spinning over the road in two large sleighs and made the air ring with song and merriment. On their return to the church, they found that the chairman of the social committee, W. H. Schorlemmer and his assistants had refreshments ready for serving, and never did viands disappear more rapidly. The resignation of Harold Fox from the office of secretary was accepted with regret and Kenneth Webster appointed to fill out the unexpired term. From now on the meetings will start at 7 o'clock, so as to allow for skating afterward. Next Tuesday the meeting will be in charge of the devotional committee, Miss Mary Rogers, chairman.

MURDERED MAN'S SON TESTIFIES IN MURDER TRIAL

Pathetic Figure in Quebec Case; McDonald Trial Is Postponed

VALLEY FIELD, Que., Dec. 7.—Presenting a pathetic figure in the witness box, Arthur Bouchard, 16-year-old son of Armand Bouchard, Lachine taxi operator, with whose murder George C. McDonald and his wife are charged, testified at today's session of the trial of the accused pair in the court of king's bench here. The youth gave his testimony in a low, soft tone and only once did his voice assume a strong ring. That was when he told Philippe Brail, K.C., crown prosecutor, asked him the formal question, "Do you know your father died?"

"He was killed," the youth shot out through tightly gritted teeth.

While the boy described his father's last meal at home both accused leaned forward in the dock and were visibly affected with the rest of the court.

Doris McDonald bit her lip hard when she heard him tell of his father's departure for Malone, N.Y., with about $500 in cash on his person the day of the murder, July 17, last.

This was by far the most dramatic event of the day. The examination of the young witness, one of several children left by the victim, was so obviously painful that Mr. Brail halted it after a few minutes and told Mr. Justice Walsh he would rely on other witnesses for additional matters concerning Bouchard and the affairs of his little garage in Lachine.

John P. Johnston, New York insurance broker, testified that he was a guest at a local hotel on the day of the murder and saw Bouchard, the victim, in the room of the two accused shortly before the McDonalds left Montreal.

R. L. Calder, K.C., defence counsel, subjected Johnston's memory to a series of questions, but failed to shake his positive statements.

Court was adjourned until Friday morning, in view of the Feast of the Immaculate Conception tomorrow, a provincial holiday.

TRAIL, B.C., Dec. 7.—Pleading guilty to a charge of selling liquor illegally, Jessie Bodner, proprietress of a cafe on Rossland avenue, was fined $300 and costs by Magistrate Noble Blinn in police court today. James Wilkinson of the Palace hotel, charged with keeping liquor in a room other than a private guest room, pleaded guilty and was fined $100 and costs.

Two other cases were adjourned until Friday at 3 o'clock.

BOAT CLUBBERS DEFEAT SHEIKS SECOND TIME

Beat them 27-24 in Spirited Clash; Boatmen Are Much Faster Team

TRAIL, B.C., Dec. 7.—Trail Sheiks went down to their second defeat of the season tonight when they were beaten 27 to 24 by the Arrow Boat club in a spirited and somewhat rough game.

The boat club boys properly outplayed them on the floor, with good defensive as well as offensive tactics. Snappy combination, persistent shooting, and team work of good calibre won. The Sheiks lacked pep and coordination, were haphazard in their checking, and frequently left their basket entirely unguarded.

Phenomenal shooting from the center floor by Evans saved by the Sheiks from a much worse defeat.

For the Boat club Anderson with eight points and Curtis, a valuable acquisition at center, who made 10 points, and Campbell with six, were the real scorers. Ekers converted a penalty and Hartley made a field goal.

Woodford at forward and Williams, guard, were spares.

For the Sheiks Evans made 11 points, Baillie eight, and Burrows, five. Chandler and Sammons played the guard positions.

B. Weldon was referee.

TRAIL PREPARES ACCOMMODATE PRIMARY CLASS

Expect 27 Beginners After the Christmas Holidays; Census Taken

REVERT TO ONE-HOUR PERIOD FOR LUNCH

Christmas Holidays December 22 to January 3; No Teachers Resign Yet

TRAIL, B.C., Dec. 7.—Provision for a new primary class to start at the Central school after the Christmas holidays was a feature of tonight's meeting of the Trail-Tadnac school board when the whole matter of new school accommodation for both public and high schools was gone into at length.

A census of children likely to enter public schools here in the next few years, which has been compiled from data secured through school children, was presented. It showed that there are 339 children under school age. It is expected that 27 which have now reached 6 years of age will enter after the Christmas holidays.

SHORTER LUNCH HOUR

By order of the education department, it was announced the Christmas holidays will be shortened on account of the already short school year due to influenza paralysis. Schools will close on December 22 and reopen on January 3.

With the time expired for teachers to hand in their resignations, the staffs of all the schools here presumably will continue until midsummer, with the addition of a primary class teacher yet to be appointed.

Beginning with the new year, the noon recess hour will revert to a one-hour period. The present plan of an hour and a half, while it allows children to go home for lunch, is considered not entirely satisfactory, in that many of the youngsters return to school to play much earlier than necessary, while others, it is thought, would merely use the extra half hour to play about in the snow this winter. Opinion was much divided on this subject.

EAGLES ENTERTAIN AT DANCE, WHIST

Eagles lodge entertained about 150 people at a huge dance and whist drive held at the Eagle hall last night, when the lady winners at cards were Mrs. Sindle, first; Mrs. Towner, second; and Mrs. H. Brindle, consolation.

C. Mackenzie. She was attended by Miss Marjorie Mackenzie, who wore a gown of pearl georgette with a black velvet sash and veil to match and carried a bouquet of pink and white carnations and chrysanthemums. She was also attended by Miss Cynthia Dockstader, who wore a georgette crepe frock in the lemon shade and carried a basket of pink and white roses chrysanthemums and carnations.

The groom was supported by Hector McDonald. Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Mackenzie. Mr. and Mrs. Jackson will reside in Trail.

THREE TEAMS IN TRAIL'S SENIOR HOCKEY LEAGUE

Stewart to Manage; City Team Sponsors; Three Captains Selected

TRAIL, B.C., Dec. 7.—Formation of a senior hockey league in the city was begun tonight when sufficient players to form a three-team league signed on at a public meeting in the Memorial hall.

The league this year will be under the direction of the Trail Hockey club with the idea of developing Trail's best hockey talent for berths on the Trail West Kootenay league team as they occur. Sam Stewart was appointed general manager and J. Schofield was named secretary.

Three team captains were selected—S. Matovich, T. Garland and G. Pasquale. If sufficient players register within the next few days other captains will be chosen and at the next general meeting teams will be selected with an eye to equal strength.

To Mr. Stewart was delegated the job of getting full data on practice hours, which is essential to the league before it can proceed further.

VICTORIA, Dec. 7.—Fred C. Elliott, president of the Victoria Conservative association, states tonight that there is nothing for publication concerning the question arising out of R. H. Pooley's statement as to Liberal money being paid to some presumably Conservative supporters. The executive had the subject before it at a private meeting, but declined to say anything on adjournment.

A Kootenay Winter Fair

Winter is the season, to a large extent, of leisure and diversion. More people, throughout the communities of the Kootenay, for instance, have time to pause from work, and to give time to matters of improvement, study, or recreation, in the winter than during the spring, the fall, or the summer.

There is no particular reason, except that it has never yet been done, why the Kootenay should not have something in this nature of a winter fair.

It might be a roving fair. One year Nelson might hold it, another year Cranbrook, a third year Trail, a fourth year Fernie.

It would not be a matter of a permanent organization, that is to say, if these lines were followed. In Cranbrook's year, for instance, the council, fair board, and citizens of Cranbrook could set up a special organization. In Nelson's case, the fair board of the year could be the nucleus of the organization required. Women's organizations might contribute kerchiefs to the cause, Rotarians, Gyros, Travelers might be enlisted.

A real Kootenay get-together, comprising a display of Kootenay products, entertainment, sports, perhaps Chautauqua and convention features, might be developed.

It would be a good thing for the people of the Kootenay to really get together on a big scale once in a while. Distribution of the honors between the different larger centers would ensure that acquaintance of the people of the Kootenay with their own great territory would be enlarged.

When Nelson builds its Pavilion, it will be in a position to stage the fair in its turn with especial distinction.

Play Places the Solution

Some of our governmental bodies in the Kootenay find themselves discussing how to protect from juvenile attention such inviting places of assembly as frozen reservoirs, dangerous lakes, street slides, and so forth.

Putting up "Forbidden" signs only goes a little way toward solving the problem.

The best way to fence off areas that for one reason or another are not to be used by the boys and girls, is to provide better ones and safe ones definitely for their use.

Outdoor rinks constructed with a snow shovel and a line of hose, coasting places graded a little, take-off places for ski jumping—these pay dividends in so many ways that a conscientious auditor could never sum up his total of what they are worth to the community.

Uncle Sam Starts Legislating

In the United States, the legislative season has started, and the constitutions with which the American people have surrounded themselves can be heard creaking.

At Washington congress opened Tuesday, for what is known as the long term. That is to say, it can sit just as long as it likes, and very likely next summer's heat will find congressmen and senators still pawing the air. This is in distinction from the short term, coming in alternate years, when the ensuing March 4 will summarily end all proceedings. A congress last just two years, a presidential term just four, so each alternate March 4 lets the guillotine fall on legislation and legislators. Two years life is all that the American constitution allows to a congressman; he must be chosen all over again after that. Those now beginning their duties were elected in November, 1926. All last winter they beheld their predecessors, who had lost the confidence or had not sought it, of the electors, busy on the job of legislation.

Nor are the worst creakings from Washington. All the states have constitutions carefully framed on the United States model. Every legislature has both a house and a senate. In such small states as Vermont and New Hampshire, their memberships yet run into hundreds. But the legislatures, owing in part at least to their constitutions, it is fair to say, are in constant disrepute that under the spur of the popular demand they have been further hedged in and limited. Some states only allow their legislatures to sit once in two years, and some set a time limit. Washington state has such distrust of the ability and disinterestedness of its chosen local legislators that it holds them down to six weeks once in two years.

A legislature may be in opposition to the state government, just as both house and senate at Washington may be

Pioneer Winnipeg Fire Chief Resigns After Term Fifty-four Years

WINNIPEG, Dec. 7.—Winnipeg's fire chief, J. E. Buchanan has handed in his resignation after 45 years of service.

Chief Buchanan comes within the recently adopted provisions of the pension bylaw which requires every civic employee to retire on pension of attaining the age of 65 if he has 20 years service to his credit.

In opposition to the president. But the States are in a worse way than the national government in that a governor may be opposed by part of his official family, as most states elect several of their state officials.

While the federal government does appoint its officials, most of the states elect every public servant possible, from judges down to local constables. Like legislators of all degrees, they are responsible only to those who elect them.

However, our friends across the line have the greatest system of government on earth. It is something they wouldn't apply to the management of a ball team, but still they hold nothing like it was ever devised in the heavens above or in the earth beneath. And they are about right.

It is all very well to plan out the ideal lunch to prepare for ourselves and our families—but every woman knows that, now and then, especially with Christmas approaching, there are certain days when it's easier just to eat a sandwich, perhaps, while still at some task which we are loathe to leave than to repair to the kitchen range and do things properly. I like to keep the following recipes always at hand, for such emergencies as this, so that I can make the sandwiches early in the morning, wrap them in a damp napkin and place them in the refrigerator or any very cold spot, and then go and get them at noontime, when I wish to.

Savory Sandwiches—Mix together one-half cup of either chopped mild American cheese or the same measure of cream cheese, one tablespoon of chopped sour pickles, and one small onion. Spread on buttered bread slices (this recipe makes two large sandwiches).

Chocolate Sandwiches—Melt together four tablespoons of butter and one-half of a cake of sweet chocolate. Stir in a few finely chopped nut meats and spread on unbuttered slices of bread (this makes two large sandwiches).

Coconut Sandwiches—Mix together one-fourth cup of confectioner's sugar and one-half cup of grated canned coconut, then stir in enough orange juice to form a paste. Spread on buttered white bread (two large sandwiches).

Olive Sandwiches—Mince six stuffed olives finely and into them stir one hard boiled and chopped egg and two tablespoons of mayonnaise salad dressing. Spread on any kind of bread. (Two large sandwiches).

Marmalade Sandwiches—If you keep a little marmalade on hand, and also a small can of marshmallow paste, these are quickly made. Simply stir one tablespoon of the marmalade (jam may be substituted) into two tablespoons of the marshmallow fluff, and spread on buttered slices of any kind of bread—this, also, will fill two large sandwiches.

Tomorrow—A Child's Knitted Sweater.

That Body of Yours

By JAMES W. BARTON, M.D.

The Value of Meat

Practically every writer on health advises against the use of too much meat. In fact, some writers advise that meat be not eaten at all.

Now, as frequently pointed out, there is no question but that indoor office workers can get along with very little meat, but it is a mistake for those who do hard physical work, indoors or outdoors, to abstain from meat and eggs.

Unfortunately, also, there are many individuals, below par physically, underweight, and with low blood pressure, who consider it very unwise to eat any meat.

The National Anti-tuberculosis congress tells us that a tuberculosis subject, fed on cereals and starchy foods, may fatten, without offering any resistance to tuberculosis, while a patient who absorbs and well supports a diet rich in albumen—especially a meat diet—although he does not fatten much will develop a greater resistance and recover more easily.

Now, it is known that practically everybody has tuberculosis at some time in his life, but is able to overcome it by natural resistance, therefore a little meat might be good for all of us.

However, fat in meat, or fat in the form of cod liver oil, is perhaps the most important food for building up resistance to tuberculosis.

Ordinary meats and vegetables as digested, have to go through the liver before they reach the circulation proper, whereas fats are absorbed by those other vessels, the lymphatics, and go directly to the right side of the heart, and then directly to the lungs.

Thus a diet rich in fat reaches the lungs that much sooner.

Therefore oils, particularly cod liver oil, a dessert spoonful before each meal, is good treatment in tuberculosis, and in most "run down" or underweight conditions.

My point, then, is that for the normal individual of average weight and height, the use of much meat and fat may not be necessary.

Vegetables, fruits, eggs and meat occasionally will take care of his needs.

But undernourished individuals, even if not tuberculous, should, in addition to the cod liver oil, eat meat, beef and liver particularly, at least once every day.

Twenty Years Ago

(From The Daily News, Dec. 8, 1907)

Yesterday for the first time since November 11, the whistles at the Granby smelter were heard all over the city of Grand Forks, but no men turned out to work. There are a few men in the town from outside, but the local union men intend to stand pat on their refusal to work under the new schedule of wages.

J. L. Buchan, manager of the local branch of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, leaves this morning for a month's trip to Toronto and eastern points. J. T. Beattie, local manager at Greenwood, will take his place, while T. M. Foote, accountant here, will relieve Mr. Beattie at Greenwood.

The grocery and provision business of R. M. Hood & Co. has been disposed of to A. S. Horswill of Kenora, who will shortly reopen the Baker street store. Mr. Horswill has conducted a grocery and provision business in Kenora for a considerable time, and has taken an active interest in public affairs, having served as mayor in that city.

Archib Bishop has returned from his old home in Ontario, where he has been for the past few weeks, in time for the hockey season.

Heavy rains in the Bathurst vicinity are keeping lumbering men from the woods.

Ten Years Ago

(From The Daily News, Dec. 8, 1917)

After succeeding in enlisting in the 225th some time ago, W. J. McIntyre has returned to Grand Forks, having been discharged on account of being over the age limit.

In a letter from France it is stated that Captain Holmes-a-Court of Balfour is taking a six-weeks' course at Boulogne.

R. D. Hall, city telegraph agent for the Canadian Pacific railway, received a telegram from Mrs. Hall's relatives in Halifax stating that all had escaped injury in the disaster.

Two horses belonging to Alex Munroe were drowned yesterday, when they deliberately walked off the front of the ferry. They dragged behind them a light sleigh loaded with mail for Kiltor's Landing. The mail was recovered.

Late heavy rains have caused much delay in hauling potatoes in P.E.I. and bridges and roads in the east badly need repair.

Considering the Belle of the Youngest Set of All

This little miss is going to school this year for the first time. She is very shy and hopes no one will notice her. But of course they will because she is wearing the most exciting dress. If one stops wondering about the gay smoking, there are the little tabs with their rows of buttons which make the yoke so different. You can see that any little girl with such charming taste will be very popular.

For this first day she chose her printed challis which has a plain yoke and cuffs; but she has others in two shades of pongee, voile and light weight linen as well as wool jersey and gingham. For parties there is a lovely crepe de chine. All of them have separate bloomers to match. Some have short sleeves slightly puffed. Although she is only six this very becoming frock would be just as suitable if she were already ten. (Copyright, 1927, by Butterick)

Geddes Favors Council to Investigate Grievances

LONDON, Dec. 7.—The success of the establishment of conciliatory councils in individual industries is testified to by Sir Eric Geddes, ex-M.P., chairman of the Dunlop Rubber company, Dunlop Tire & Rubber corporation of America, and allied companies. Sir Eric, in speaking of the council of 43 operatives, 13 of whom are women in the Dunlop concerns, says that it was established amid some suspicion, but it has already proved a triumph of good will common sense and fairness. The council investigates grievances among the employees and aims at avoiding labor disputes.

Better-Class Women Use

ONE of the commonest obstacles to the average woman's peace-of-mind was the old-time "sanitary pad." Uncertain and unsafe, it has now been supplanted with scientific protection that is absolute.

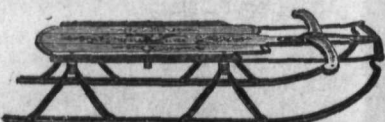

With the amazing absorbency of 16 times its own weight in moisture, KOTEX, the new way, is 5 times as absorbent as the ordinary cotton pad. It is the only sanitary pad filled with Cellucotton wadding, the world's super-absorbent.

Also, it deodorizes while it acts. Also, it discards easily as tissue. No laundry, no disposal embarrassment. Obtain at any store. 12 in a box.

Note particularly that the package is marked KOTEX. If not, don't accept—it is not genuine Kotex.

SALE OF WORK IS HELD AS BOSWELL

BOSWELL, B.C., Dec. 7.—The annual sale of work and social evening sponsored by the local branch of the women's auxiliary, was held in the Memorial hall on Friday afternoon and evening. The sale was very well supported. The stalls, which had been tastefully arranged, included plain and fancy work, home cooking and a jumble stall where some wonderful bargains were obtainable at very low prices. The children were particularly catered for by a bran tub at 10 cents per dip, and also some special competitions under the direction of T. Tait and S. Sherman.

Mrs. K. Wallace and Mrs. A. Hephner were in charge of the home cooking stall. The needlework was in the care of Mrs. A. Kennedy and Mrs. J. R. Higgins, whilst Mrs. H. Johnstone and Miss Holiday Smith had the jumble stall. Miss Grace Mackie and Miss Kate Bebbington had charge of the bran tub, and afternoon tea was served by Miss B. Johnson and Ruth Cummings.

In the evening the party was devoted to a whist drive, for which Rev. Clyde Harvey acted as master of ceremonies, the prize winners being Mrs. A. Kennedy and T. Tait. Dancing was enjoyed later, K. Wallace being in charge of the floor.

The president, Mrs. K. Wallace, expressed the thanks of the members to those present for their kind support and assistance. The proceeds of the sale, after allowing for expenses, amounted to $20.

Rev. Clyde Harvey spent the week-end here, the guest of Mr. and Mrs. K. Wallace, and on the Sunday conducted three services, returning to Procter on Monday evening.

The members of the Boswell branch of the women's auxiliary met at the home of Mrs. J. R. Higgins, Mrs. K. Wallace, president, being in the chair. The report of the recent sale of work was presented and adopted. An addition to the number of small pledges and donations, $15, was voted toward the block assessment, and a further sum of $10 was voted to the vicarage fund.

BOSWELL, B.C., Dec. 7.—The members of the Boswell Literary and Dramatic society met at the home of Mrs. J. H. Sherman conducted the negative. A spirited discussion took place, and later each member had the privilege of open discussion, which was much enjoyed. Capt. C. R. Higgins was in the chair for the evening.

Mrs. J. Norris, who was in charge of the needlework, found ready sale for the pretty embroidered gifts worked by the members. A tempting stall was that of home cooking looked after by Miss Mary Edwards, Miss Esther Anderson and Miss Beth Norris. Tea was daintily served at small tea tables centered with flowers.

Redeemer Church
Committee Is Host

Fairviewites made merry last night at a court whist and dance entertainment in the Church of the Redeemer Parish hall. The entertainment was given by the men's church committee, with George Brant in charge.

Prize winners were: Mrs. A. Pfeiffer, ladies' first; E. Jarvis, men's first; Mrs. G. A. Thompson, ladies' consolation; Bert Evans, men's consolation.

The dance followed refreshments.

W. J. Sturgeon, Silica street, had as his guest yesterday George Procter of Vancouver, who arrived in Nelson yesterday morning on the delayed Kettle Valley train, en route to Trail, where he is to work for the West Kootenay Power & Light company.

Rev. Leo A. Hobson, who has been in town since Tuesday, left last night for Needles. He has recently been appointed to succeed Rev. Father McMillan, whose district was between Nakusp and Golden.

A wedding of much interest in Nelson took place in Vancouver, Tuesday, the parents of both contracting parties being Nelson pioneer residents. The young people, who before their marriage were in the Canadian Pacific general offices, Vancouver, were presented with a sterling silver tray, a carving set, and a silver tea service from various departments. It is thus described in the Vancouver Province: "St. Paul's Anglican church was the scene of a quiet wedding this afternoon, when Evelyn Rose, elder daughter of Mrs. R. C. Barker and the late R. O. Barker, became the bride of William Hugh Fletcher, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Frank Fletcher of Nelson. Rev. Harold King officiated. The bride, who was given in marriage by her brother, Robert Chester Barker, entered the church to the strains of the wedding march played by F. W. Robinson. She was attractively gowned in a French model of grey georgette with touches of rose, the fitted, tiered skirt being ornamented at the waist with a rhinestone buckle. A close-fitting hat of rose metallic cloth and grey shoes and stockings were worn. She carried butterfly roses and fransonia tied with silver ribbons. The bride's only attendant was Miss Annie Crisp, who wore a bouffant taffeta frock, combining two shades of blue, the lighter tone of the dress being emphasized by a wide scalloped band in the skirt of the darker color, which also appeared at the wrist and neck of the moulded bodice. A black velvet hat, turned up at the back and slightly poked in front, with a large black flower at the side, completed the ensemble. Single pink chrysanthemums and Laddie carnations were carried. The groom was supported by A. C. Black. Mrs. Barker, mother of the bride, wore a striking gown of taupe velvet, the silver trimmings being accented by a silver hat and silver fox scarf. A corsage of violets was worn. During the signing of the register Mrs. E. V. Adlett sang "My World." Immediately after the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Fletcher left for Portland, where the honeymoon will be spent, the bride wearing a blue needle-point coat with grey fox collar and cuffs. Ontario Not Asked

Making Conference

OTTAWA, Dec. 7.—Three million parasitic flies have been liberated in the fields of western Ontario to fight the corn borer, while new agricultural implements have also been developed by the department of agriculture to assist in combating the menace.

The flies were imported from Europe and are the natural enemy of the corn borer.

With the recently invented implements, corn stalks may now be cut off within an inch of the ground. In this way the number of borers is reduced from 40,000 to 2000 per acre. The corn growers are making progress in the campaign against the borer, and a reduction of 50 per cent was noted during the past year.

JOY

By BARBARA WEBB

A STORY OF LOVE, TRIAL, TEMPTATIONS AND TRIUMPHS

SYNOPSIS

Joyce Daring is left homeless when her parents separate. She gets work as a telephone operator at a hotel. Her mother disappears and her father, penniless, goes in search of her. Joyce is befriended by Mrs. Evangeline Maltby, very wealthy widow, for whom she has done a great service. Introduced into society, she makes a friend of Franky Starret, and an enemy of Catherine Sherwin, who is jealous of Carter Deland's attentions to Joyce. Deland asks Joyce to roam the world with him, and she sends him packing when he refuses to marry her. Two other boys, David Tompkins, a childhood sweetheart, and Henry Deacon, want her to marry them. Young Deacon is interested in a business left in poor shape by his father's sickness, and she is left pretty much alone. She devotes more and more of her time to Mrs. Maltby, and becomes all but a child to her.

CHAPTER XXXVII.

Shadow of Death

"Well, what have you done with Carter now, Miss Joyce Daring?" Joyce looked up from her work in surprise. The voice was strange to her, for a moment she did not recognize the face.

Then she exclaimed, "Why, Catherine Sherwin! When did you get back? I haven't seen you for a month. I thought you were still at Palm Beach."

"No, I got back yesterday, called my Carter up and found he'd run away. I asked Mattie here where he was, and she said you would probably know."

The girl's tone was hostile and she looked at Joyce, wearing her headpiece and busy with calls, contemptuously.

"I don't know anything about Carter," said Joyce, a little stiffly. "He went to the Bermudas a little before Christmas and I haven't a idea where he is now."

"But you hear from him, don't you, Miss Daring?" broke in the acid voice of Matilda Truesdale.

"That is strange when you were so intimate just before he left," Miss Truesdale attempted a smile and Joyce thought, "She's like to poison me, I believe."

But aloud she said, "Sorry I can't help you out. His club would probably forward mail to him."

"Is that where you send your letters?" Catherine asked spitefully.

"I don't write to him," said Joyce, quietly, busy with some report slips on her desk and hoping to end the interview in this manner.

"Well, I'll see you later," said Catherine, moving away and apparently a little ashamed of herself.

Joyce stared after them. Carter! She missed him, there was no denying it. Life had been a pretty drab affair of late. After the Christmas holidays Deke had buried himself in his work. Franky was making preparations to sail for England within a week, and only ran in to see Joyce for a few minutes at a time now. Davey was out of the city a great deal and was very silent, almost gloomy when they were together.

GROWERS FAVOR A PROVINCIAL POOL OF FRUIT

Kootenay and Arrow Lakes Representatives Ask for More Inspectors

DISCUSS CONTRACT TO REPLACE OLD ONE

Dean Urges Mechanical Grader; Vance Gives the Average Cherry Prices

Resolutions favoring a return to a provincial pool in place of the present Kootenay pool, and asking for the appointment of more inspectors in this district, were feature resolutions passed by representatives of the Kootenay and Arrow Lakes Fruit Growers' associations meeting in Nelson recently.

A provision of the resolution favoring return to a provincial pool provided for weekly pools on soft fruits to protect shippers of late varieties of cherries. The difficulty of allotting orders equitably under the present system of separate pools was an argument advanced in favor of the change. It was also argued that all fruit being shipped should be charged to the pool, instead of to the locals as under the present system.

ASK TWO INSPECTORS
In asking for the appointment of two more government fruit inspectors, the meeting expressed a desire to have as many cars move under government inspection as the available staff can handle.

The meeting also favored the exclusion of certain undesirable varieties from the contract, and the opinion was expressed that the tonnage should, to a certain extent, be selected by the exclusion of poor varieties and the output of locals and growers who are known to put up inferior packs.

COVER CHERRIES

C. S. Squires, Associated director for the Arrow Lakes district, gave an interesting talk on his recent visit to the prairies, when he visited Calgary, Edmonton, Medicine Hat, Moose Jaw, Regina, Saskatoon and Winnipeg as a representative of the Associated Growers. The object of his visit was to study at first hand several matters in connection with fruit marketing, such as the demands of the trade as to grades, sizes and varieties, the condition of the fruit on arrival, and the comparative merits of the shipments from the various districts.

Speaking of cherries, Mr. Squires was of the opinion that a small percentage of the poorer varieties of early sweet cherries were being shipped as Royal Annes. These invariably arrived showing bruises and otherwise in poor condition and were seriously injuring the reputation of this variety. The black cherries should be black when picked, and if properly handled will reach the market in good condition. Mr. Squires recommended a paper covering over the baskets to exclude dust, and this was endorsed by a resolution of the meeting.

In apples the demand, as usual, is for large and medium sizes, and a good proportion of all cars should consist of size 150 and larger in the wrapped grades. Where both C grade and crates were being packed from a variety the crates are bound to contain a larger percentage of small sizes than desired by the dealers. It might be a good plan to try moving fall varieties in orchard run crates in order to make a quick cleanup on these.

When Joyce was talking with some of the girls at the reading club, Mattie paused at her side to say, "And how do you find it going since you have ceased being so exclusive?"

Joyce had stared at her and Helen Powers had said gaily, "Explain yourself, Mattie."

"Ask Miss Daring," Mattie had said, with a triumphant glance at Joyce.

"I suppose she refers to my going out with men in the hotel once in a while," Joyce answered, shrugging.

On this particular evening Joyce had promised to go to the theater with a bond salesman who was stopping at the Statler for several weeks. She liked him. He was a friendly young fellow, devoted to a girl back home who wouldn't promise to marry him. He had poured the tale of his woes into Joyce's ears more than once, and she found him a pleasant and harmless way of spending an otherwise tiresome evening.

She was starting to meet him in the usual place at the far end of the lobby when a voice called her name. Turning she saw Judge Perkins hurrying after her.

"Have you an important engagement for the evening, Miss Daring?" he asked.

"I have an engagement," Joyce answered, "but it can wait for a few minutes if there is anything you want."

She thought perhaps he had some particular business, but she would like her to put through.

"It's very important," he told her, gravely. "I must ask you to give the whole evening to me. My dear friend Mrs. Maltby is very ill with pneumonia and is asking for you."

"I can't believe it," Joyce cried. "I saw her just two days ago."

"It is true, nevertheless," answered the judge. "Can you come at once?"

Joyce hurried over to her waiting escort.

"I'm awfully sorry, Jack," she told him, "but a very dear friend of mine is very sick and Judge Perkins wants me to go out to see her right away."

"Sorry, too," said the young man good naturedly. "We'll make it some other time. So long," and he stroled back into the lobby to hunt another companion for his evening's pleasure.

Joyce rejoined Judge Perkins. With no further word they made their way to the waiting Maltby limousine.

"I have been out there all afternoon," the judge explained. "She is very anxious to see you."

"But is she so very sick?" Joyce asked, incredulously.

"I doubt if she has much longer to live," answered the judge, gravely.

TOMORROW—The imminent death of Mrs. Maltby threatens to take the last prop upon which Joyce Daring has leaned, since her mother's disappearance, the departure of her father, the expulsion of Carter Deland and the immersion in business of Henry Deacon. With a heavy heart she goes to attend her dying friend. Read tomorrow's fascinating instalment of "JOY", the love story of an American girl.

Cold weather prevented to a considerable extent the movement of crates, especially to country points.

STILL POOR GRADING

While shipments from most Kootenay locals were creditable, he regretted to have to report that there was still a small percentage of the pack that was anything but a good advertisement. This small percentage, being poorly graded, poorly packed and shipped in untidy packages, was doing immeasurable harm to the whole marketing deal. While careful grading and packing were absolutely essential, the neatness of the package was also important, and all variety and grade marks should be stamped, not written, as was the case with some shipments that came under his observation.

He found the O.K. brand everywhere in demand, and was also very much impressed by the efficiency of the Associated Growers' line of brokerage houses, the Canadian Fruit Distributors. While the f.o.b. basis of sales established by the committee of direction was a decided advantage this year, Mr. Squires felt that in a full crop year the best results could only be obtained by having all sales made through one channel.

LACK OF INSPECTION

F. Dean, Associated inspector, presented a report of his work during the past season covering the very large territory comprised by Creston, Erickson, Wynnadel, Slokan Valley, Kootenay and Arrow Lakes as far north as Posthall, 12 miles north of Nakusp. The difficulty of covering the territory is obvious, and it was due to that fact that a great many shipments had to move without inspection. It was also a difficult season owing to the prevalence of apple scab, and instances cases where scab had developed to a serious extent after packing.

The tendency to pack out all available of the higher grades should be discouraged, as it robs the lower grades and lowers the standard of the whole pack. While some points without central pack are doing very well, this is not true in all cases. The use of mechanical graders, where tonnage warranted, was formerly used as a more uniform pack would result. Very little trouble was experienced this year from breakdown of fruit. Mr. Dean made a strong appeal for quality first, claiming that to maintain, or, if possible, to raise the standard of the O.K. brand would be the best solution of marketing difficulties. His report was very well received and the meeting voted that a copy be forwarded to every member in the district.

PEARS, PLUMS SOFT

W. M. Vance, manager of the Nelson sub-central, who followed Mr. Dean, told of some of the difficulties encountered in the marketing of pears and plums. The carrying qualities of these fruits were very poor this season, pears particularly becoming soft though still green in color. He instanced one car containing pears which arrived in Nelson from various assembly points on a Friday, was loaded and shipped to Moose Jaw on Saturday, and although only five days to destination arrived with the fruit in an unsalable condition. Prices for cherries were on the whole satisfactory, the average for 2200 crates Royal Anne being $1.95, for 4300 Bing $3.49, and for 3600 Lambert $3.53 1/2. The last cherry pools were slightly lower than expected, due to the competition of California grapes at that time. Owing to the regulation of the committee of direction that no fruit was to be rolled unsold, it was very important to have accurate information as to what was coming forward, and this was very difficult to get from the large territory served by the sub-central, with poor communication to a great many points. Shipments had to be arranged so as not to arrive at their destination on Saturday nor on whatever day of the week that particular town selected for its half-holiday. Dealing with apples, the "no roller" regulation of the committee of direction had been of great benefit, tending toward stabilization, and with f.o.b. sales it was easier to charge back all claims to the local concerned. There was some difficulty in making up desirable assortments owing to the scarcity of Delicious and other popular varieties. The crate he considered a very desirable package from the point of view of the prairie retailer, but if the demand was to continue the standard for this package must be kept up, particularly as regards size.

NEW CONTRACT

E. J. Chambers, president and general manager of the Associated, presented for consideration a draft of the proposed new contract which is expected to be adopted at a meeting of the Associated board of directors, to become effective upon the expiration of the present contract on March 31 next. The new contract instead of being for a five-year term will be continuous, but has a clause providing for cancellation provided that notice is given by either the growers or the Associated before March 31 in any year. Some amendments to the draft as published in the October number of the O. K. Bulletin, have already been approved. The last sentence of Section 5 being deleted, and an additional clause being added to Section 6, giving the local power to pledge the fruit or vegetables handled for purposes of financing.

Under organization, Mr. Chambers outlined a plan proposed to reduce the present number of members of the board of directors by dividing the territory covered by the Associated into seven districts, each district having four representatives. This board of representatives would meet only twice or three times per year, at one of which meetings they would elect one of their number from each district to the board of directors. This would constitute a board of seven members instead of 28 as at present, and these would meet at least once a month. The president claims for this plan not only greater efficiency in the transaction of business, but better representation for all districts. A resolution in favor of giving the plan a trial was adopted by the meeting.

UNDESIRABLES
The difficulty of charging back claims on "D" contractor fruit after being shipped from an assembly point was discussed at some length, and the meeting voted that all "D" contractor shipments should be treated as a unit and claims charged to their output collectively as to a local.

The meeting went on record as favoring the exclusion of certain undesirable varieties from the contract, and the opinion was freely expressed that tonnage should, to a certain extent, be selected by the exclusion of poor varieties and the output of locals and growers who are known to put up inferior packs.

WINNIPEG MAROONS WIN ONE CONTEST
WINNIPEG, Dec. 7.—"Steamer" Maxwell's Winnipeg Maroons, who have been the doormats of the American Hockey association to date, stepped out of their shell tonight and handed the St. Paul team a sound thrashing, 4 to 1. The youthful Maroons outplayed the Saints in every department of the game and only the brilliant work of McCusker in the St. Paul nets kept the score down.

Young Johnny Gottselig, Regina boy, was the shining light of the game. Johnny displayed cunning and speed that had the St. Paul defence at sea throughout. He figured directly or indirectly in every goal scored by the locals.

CONVENT DEFEATS

BANKERS LOSE TO WOLVES 'A' TEAM
Intermediate Basketball Game Played Under Protest to Referee

Wolves "A" playing beautiful combination, and getting around with remarkable speed, downed the strong bankers' squad, 26-20, in an intermediate league basketball game at the high school last night. The game was practically played under protest by the Bankers, although the rules of the league this year allow no protests.

The trouble all started when no certified referee was available, and Joe Bush was accepted by the Bankers. After the game was under way, the Bankers protested that Bush was not paying attention to the game and suggesting substituting George Campion, one of the Wolves players, but A. Wallace, father of the Wolves and vice-president of the Basketball league, would not stand for it.

Three times during the game, the Bankers quit, but each time agreed to play on and finally had the bad luck to lose the game.

The Wolves played very good basketball and the Bankers had a job on their hands holding them back. Jimmy Carter was perhaps the best man on the Bankers, while Jeffs and Richardson showed up well for the Wolves.

The teams were:

Wolves—Jeffs, Richardson, Campion, Wallace, Stark, McLeod.

Bankers—L. Realya, K. V. Fish, Jones, Jimmy Carter, W. Freno and A. Farenholtz.

BASEBALL ILLS ARE AIRED AT DALLAS
DALLAS, Texas, Dec. 7.—Minor league grievances over the present major-minor draft code and the controversy over the life of the agreement, covering relations between the major and minor league were briefly aired on the floor of the annual convention of the National association of professional baseball leagues here today.

No action was taken on the draft question although it provoked a lengthy discussion, but the matter of the life of the major-minor agreement was referred to a committee for a conference of apparently conflicting causes.

The major-minor agreement was drawn up seven years ago to finish the upper and lower status of baseball with a code to rule relations between the major leagues and the smaller circuits. One clause of the agreement seems to indicate that the understanding is to last seven years, in which case the document would become inoperative next season.

Another section of the instrument seems to make its life 25 years. Some minor leagues, chafing under the present draft law or other phases of the agreement hope that the understanding will terminate this year so that a new agreement can be drawn.

Canadien Star has Broken His Shoulder
MONTREAL, Dec. 7.—The Canadiens of the National Hockey league suffered a very severe loss last evening during their game at Boston.

Word reached Managing-Director Leo Dandurand today that Pete Lepine had broken his shoulder during the play. He received no other details. Sir Henry Gray, surgeon, will meet Lepine at the station tomorrow morning when the club members reach Montreal again.

Josh Devore
Smart Man
in D League

By AL DEMAREE
(Former Pitcher, New York Giants.)

Knute Rockne may have gone through with the story illustrated above because he may believe that some scouts are so dumb they couldn't learn anything if they saw a play a hundred times.

This reminds me of the time Josh Devore was traded from the Giants to Boston. Usually when a player is traded to another club, the manager changes the signs. "We'll have to have new hit-and-run signs, and new steal signs now," he says.

When the players looked over the Boston lineup and saw Devore's name there, they recalled it to McGraw. "No, we won't need to change our signs," said McGraw. "That fellow's so dumb he couldn't even remember the signs when he was with us."

I saw Josh once, several years after he had left the majors and was manager of a little club down in a class D league. "What kind of a league is it?" I asked.

"Well, Al," he said, "I'll tell you. You can draw your own conclusions. Down here I'm considered a smart ballplayer."

SIXTY BUSINESS MEN HEAR ABOUT
CANADA CHAMBER

Secretary Clarke of Canadian Chamber of Commerce Talks to Board

TELLS OF FUNCTIONS OF NEW ORGANIZATION

It Acts as Clearing House for Problems; Gives Lead to Government

Meeting one day in advance of the usual luncheon day specially for the purpose, 60 members of the board of trade heard a splendid address yesterday at the Canadian Legion, from W. McL. Clarke of Montreal, executive secretary of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, who is now winding up a Dominion-wide tour. This address, which dealt with the functions of the new Dominion board of trade organization launched at Winnipeg last year, and which has just held its first convention at Vancouver, was the fourth of Mr. Clarke's tour.

W. E. Payne, executive secretary of the Vancouver board of trade, "an organization of 1400 members," as President C. F. McHardy put it, is conveying Mr. Clarke through the interior.

When President W. M. Birks completed his Dominion tour with Mr. Clarke, Mr. Payne said, he and his associates decided that Mr. Clarke must visit the boards in the interior before being allowed to return east, and in the few days remaining, Mr. Clarke was visiting those there was time to visit.

Thus, said Mr. Payne, it was on behalf of the Vancouver board and on behalf of the boards of trade of the Dominion, that he had the honor of introducing Mr. Clarke to the Nelson board.

PHRAISE FOR MR. STANLEY
Mr. Clarke declared that, unlike the young woman who stated she was at the professional to confess and not to boast, he would boast unhesitatingly of the beautiful location of Nelson and of the Kootenay scenery, when he got back east.

"I must tell you about the work of one of your own citizens in case you do not know of it—the splendid work of Commissioner Starkey at Wembley for two years. I visited Wembley, and there came in touch with him. It was a splendid work, for both this province, and for your city." (Applause.)

He said he had an added reason for pleasure in being in Nelson, in that the Nelson board was the first in the upper country to affiliate with the chamber of commerce. Further, the attendance at the present luncheon, and the character of the business transacted, would be creditable to a center 10 times Nelson's size.

A CHAMBER NEEDED
The Canadian Chamber of Commerce, Mr. Clarke said, was the result of a strong feeling that there ought to be such an organization, to associate and represent the views of the boards of trade of the Dominion. As formed at Winnipeg last year, it was a democratic organization, exemplifying the principle of one board, one vote. It was financed in part by the subscriptions of the individual boards, and in part by firms of a national character that were in sympathy with its objects.

For many reasons 1927 was a notable year for Canada, the speaker said. There was a general prosperity; in this district, for instance, he understood there was a great mining prosperity. It also saw the establishment of direct diplomatic relations between Canada and the United States. The visit of the prime minister of Great Britain was a noteworthy event. Then, the Dominion celebrated its Diamond Jubilee. There had grown up in Canada this year a special intimacy between the various sections, and among the people, a social intercourse, and a wider commercial intercourse. There was throughout Canada a self-realization that was not before so pronounced.

ECONOMIC SENSE
"As business men, we cannot retire into our shell, and still hope to make progress," Mr. Clarke laid down as an axiom. There was a need in Canada, he said, for recognition of a national economic sense. Even such a humble thing as sending a pair of shoes to a cobbler had wide bearings. The tanner, the dyer, and many other persons were affected by this act. Business relations under modern conditions were more and more interlocking, and a merger in eastern Canada, for instance, affected the whole Dominion.

A movement in one part could not longer be considered local. There were no longer industrial or mining problems in Canada—all were business problems. In order to obtain the mature judgment of the business men of Canada, the Canadian Chamber of Commerce was called into being, Mr. Clarke said. It was an organization whose opinion on any important matter could be canvassed. When this was to be done, 60 days notice was given. Also under the constitution referenda could be held, but this expedient had not yet been invoked.

CLEARING HOUSE ON BIG QUESTIONS
At the present time the opinion of the organization was being taken in respect to the highly important coal trade. The deflecting of Canadian trade from Canadian ports was another subject under review. The question of national taxation, and of a survey of the nation's natural resources were others under discussion.

The speaker declared the Canadian Chamber of Commerce was destined to be a clearing house on national questions, also a clearing house for questions between various industries, and on all that were in the minds of Canadian business men.

He described the institution as "a prairie baby," that was christened in Saint John, and really had its first birthday celebration, in Vancouver. The 78 boards affiliated the first year had already grown to 145, and it was clear there was a national movement in favor of the chamber. Saskatchewan was the only territory not affiliated provincially, and it had a national vice-president and a national councillor, and 12 of its boards were affiliated.

BUILDING UP LOCAL BOARDS
A part of the Chamber's work was to build up the local boards of trade that had been dormant in activity. In these cases, programs were suggested, transacted, would be creditable to a center 10 times Nelson's size.

BOARD ENDORSES A COMMITTEE ON SITE OF BRIDGE

President McHardy Names 11 to Delve Into Interests of City in It

PREMIER ADVISES THAT SURVEY MONEY IS READY

Survey and Soundings to Take Place Without Loss of Time

Without discussion, or a dissenting voice, the board of trade at its monthly luncheon yesterday adopted the recommendation arrived at by its council at practically an open meeting of the members on November 17, for the appointment of a committee or not fewer than nine members, to gather for the board data upon the location of the coming Nelson bridge from the point of view of the community's interests, for eventual laying before the government.

On motion of J. A. Irving and Dr. C. C. Arthur, the board left the naming of the committee to President C. F. McHardy, who made the committee one of 11, appointing to it Vice-President A. D. McLeod, E. C. Wragge, R. L. McBride, R. W. Hinton, Mayor J. A. McDonald, M.P.P., Ven. Archdeacon Fred H. Graham, L. H. Choquette, W. S. King, George Ferguson, A. H. Green and J. A. Irving.

That the district engineer, William Ramsay, will start at once on the work of surveying and taking soundings, was the information contained in a letter from the premier's secretary, J. Morton, to Mr. McDonald as local member, of which Mr. Morton supplied a copy to the board. This letter, dated Victoria, November 28, was as follows:

"Dear Sir—In reference to the Nelson bridge situation mentioned in the board of trade letter to yourself of the 11th instant, the premier directs me to inform you that the appropriation has already been passed for the purpose of making a survey and soundings of the proposed bridge, and that work will be started on this survey without loss of time.

"As this is a very large project, the department will require to make a careful investigation in order to base an intelligent estimate and to be in a position to advise the government fully upon this undertaking."

Reading of this letter was followed by applause.
NO CALL FOR MEN
Mr. McDonald asked that The Daily News point out that the work for which the appropriation was made was solely of an engineering character and that there was nothing to justify drivers starting for Nelson in the hope of getting work.

Club Hears About Troubles of Man Who Sought for Matrimony

Troubles of a man who went hunting for matrimony at a matrimonial bureau, and the troubles which ensued when he found aspirants to his hand and heart were the subject of an interesting burlesque at the S. T. club's meeting in the basement of St. Paul's United church last night. The burlesque was directed by Miss Connie Martin.

"Fozzie," Gordon Royneon, was sued for the return of the fees paid to the matrimonial bureau by "Snookes," E. Boyes. Judge Gilbert Johnson found against "Snookes" and directed him to choose a wife from the audience.

"Fozzie's" attorney was "A. Gump," Dave Lancaster, while "Snookes" was represented by "J. Gruff," Miss D. Bowman.
NEW OFFICERS
Ben Martin was the policeman, and Miss Iris Robertson was clerk of the court.
Officers of the club elected for the new term were: E. Boyes, president; Miss Jessie Croll, vice-president; J. Davidson, secretary; Miss Helen Murphy, treasurer, and Dave Lancaster, D. Fotheringham, Miss Marjorie Stobbe and Miss Ruth Robertson, group leaders.

MURDER TRIAL BEGINS

THREE RIVERS, Que., Dec. 7.—With the selection of a jury, the trial of Albert Marcoux, charged with the murder of Alphonse Naud, 11 years of age, who lost his life in a fire which destroyed his parents' home in Three Rivers last September, began here today.
Marcoux was arrested shortly after the fire. A witness at the corner's inquest testified to the effect that that accused had been seen leaving the Naud residence a few minutes before the fire was discovered.

ANNUAL SPLURGE OF BOARD WILL BE BIG AFFAIR

Dinner for Wives and Sweethearts Proposed by McHardy Is Approved

FREIGHT CLASSIFICATION DOESN'T HIT KOOTENAY

Secretary Gigot on Convention; He and Starkey Are Thanked

Former splurges of the Nelson board of trade in the way of annual meetings or annual dinners are to pale into insignificance before the splash proposed for the board's annual meeting day in January, as authorized yesterday by the board, which enthusiastically adopted a suggestion thrown out by President C. F. McHardy. The affair will be a grand social function, centering at a banquet, with the wives, sisters and sweethearts of the members, as guests.

The applause with which the suggestion was received was interpreted by President McHardy as a recommendation to the council to proceed on those lines.

McHARDY TO RETIRE

In preparation for the business aspects of the annual gathering, President McHardy urged the members to give earnest thought to the choice of his successor, and of the new executive, "when I lay down the scepter."

A report of D. Kerr, chairman of the freight and transportation committee, on the new freight classification proposed in an application of the Canadian Freight Association to the board of railway commissioners, found that the numerous changes proposed would make no material difference to the Kootenay. Mr. Kerr stated that representatives of practically all the different merchandizing lines were present at the committee session, and that each reported the changes as to his line not such as to justify making representations.

LECTURES AS YOU WERE

Dr. C. C. Arthur reported for the committee on university lectures that the only periods of the year when members of the staff were free to go on lecture tour under the extension department were during the December and April examinations. He said the committee did not feel that a lecture on an agricultural subject, while of keen interest to any of the ranching communities, would draw a big house in Nelson, but the authorities advised the board, in answer to his letter, that in the case of Nelson wanting a special lecture that was not in the course arranged, the extension department could contribute only $10 toward the expenses of taking the lecturer to Nelson. At present, Dr. Arthur said, there was no indication of what topics would be included in the forthcoming list.

The committee was instructed to maintain an attitude of watchful waiting.
Facts about the visit to Nelson and inspection of the Lardeau branch by Mr. LeSage, inspector of the board of railway commissioners, as a result of the board's action before the commission were publicly known, President McHardy said. He expressed confidence that Mr. LeSage's report would be "followed by action for the benefit of the Lardeau."

A letter containing a proposition from a chain store concern in Great Britain regarding the marketing of fruit of the district was ordered passed on to the Associated Growers subscribers here.

GIGOT LAUDS CONVENTION

Secretary E. F. Gigot presented a brief written report on the convention of the Canadian chamber of commerce at Vancouver, which he attended while on his vacation. He spoke in high terms of the value of the addresses and discussions, as giving an insight into the different sections of the country looked on matters of common interest, and on the entertainment provided by the Vancouver board of trade, and reported himself as improved in health by the outing the board had provided him.

The board applauded both Mr. Gigot and Commissioner Fred A. Starkey, whose able service as acting secretary during Mr. Gigot's month of absence, President McHardy drew attention.
