Trail-Rossland C.C.F. Body to Hold Another Nomination

Chalked Up With a Loss Gordon of Rossland Falls Out to Allow Trail Voice

Fred Fitzsimmons, Giants' pitcher, who was chalked up with a loss in Thursday's game of the world series. He got off to a bad start in the first inning when the Washington nine made two runs.

TRAIL, B.C., Oct. 5.—C.C.F. candidate for the Trail-Rossland riding in the provincial election, November 2, will not be known until the day of nomination day. It was announced by officials of the Trail Cooperative Commonwealth Federation.

John E. Gordon, Rossland, who was selected as candidate at the C.C.F. nominating convention in Rossland some months ago, has definitely stepped down and offered himself for renomination. It is stated there will be at least two candidates for the nomination, which will be finally made on October 10.

Reason for the situation is that the Trail C.C.F. branch had not been organized at the time of the Rossland convention and had no voice in the selection. It was felt that in the interests of the party a new nomination should be made so that the selection would be unanimous and the party present a united front.

The next public meeting of the C.C.F. will be held in Trail Saturday when George Weaver, who was regional organizer at the recent Dominion convention of the C.C.F. at Regina, will be the principal speaker.

TRAIL JUNIORS WORKING HARD

Plan New Attack in Sunday Rugby Against Nelson

TRAIL, B.C., Oct. 5.—An entirely new style of play is being rehearsed by the Trail junior rugbyists in preparation for the game here on Sunday against Nelson. The locals took the opening game of the season 10-6 at Nelson last Sunday and they expect to make two straight wins.

A squad of 22 boys is turning out regularly for practices under Coach W. O. Williams and improvement on the good form witnessed in the first game is being effected. Still there is no telling what the Nelson side are doing in preparation of the game when they invade the smelter city over the week-end.

GIANTS FAVORITES TO TAKE FOURTH

NEW YORK, Oct. 5 (AP).—With Carl Hubbell slated to return to the firing line, Broadway betting commissions tonight made New York Giants favorites to take the fourth game of the world series tomorrow.

Jack Doyle, veteran commissioner, quoted 4 to 5 against the Giants and even money against the Senators for tomorrow's game. The Giants remained favorites for the series, Doyle quoting 7 to 10 against them and 11 to 10 against Washington.

Hon. I. Mackenzie Speaks in Trail

TRAIL, B.C., Oct. 5.—Hon. Ian Mackenzie, M.P. for Vancouver Center, told a large audience in the Knights of Pythias hall Thursday night why he believed the Liberal platform beneficial to the country, at this time of turmoil and chaos, stating that it was based on principles for the greatest good for the greatest number of people.

No election in the history of British Columbia has been as baffling as this one, the speaker said, and issues must be faced and conditions realized. Whatever party gets into power it will have to face the greatest crisis in the history of civilization. The Oliver-McLean government in 1916 and stated that they had not been equalled in the province at any time. This great problem to be faced is a national one, emphasized Mr. Mackenzie, and can only be solved by a recast of the entire financial system in the Dominion of Canada.

Banks must be deprived of all power over national finance and credit and sacrificed throughout the country be made equally he said.

No government can stay in power with the old system of patronage, for the job is too serious and needs the united support of the people. He denounced the C.C.F. movement, saying that 20 per cent of its platform was based on socialism and the other 80 per cent upon old Liberal ideas.

The people must not confuse public ownership with socialism he pointed out and socialization of land would be a dangerous situation in British Columbia. The country is not ready for such a drastic change as to socialism and its principles. The Liberal platform stands for the conquest of the heights of poverty with strength and a mission, and one of its greatest desires is to be beneficial to humanity.

R. B. Burns, Liberal candidate for Trail-Rossland riding, opened the meeting and Dougald McPherson, candidate for the Grand Forks-Greenwood riding, outlined the Liberal platform, stating that if it be applied, relief would be given to the province.

Social Events of Trail City

Trail, B.C., Oct. 5.—One of the loveliest of autumn weddings was solemnized in the Robson church yesterday when Doris Kathleen, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Mitnell of Robson, was united in marriage to Rupert Cecil Skelton of Trail, son of Mr. and Mrs. Skelton of Victoria, Rev. J. S. Mahood of Queen's Park, the officiant.

Beautifully decorated for the occasion, the church was turned into a chapel for the wedding. The altar and chancel were decorated with white chrysanthemums and ribbons. Bronze chrysanthemums, helianthus and golden rods were used in an artistic arrangement.

Entering the church on the arm of her father to the strains of "O Perfect Love," played by Miss Jean Macdonald of Trail, the bride was a charming picture in her model gown of white chiffon velvet. The sort material fell in graceful folds to a short train. The simplicity of the dress, which was fashioned on empire lines, was relieved by short sleeves of two soft frills. A wide, stiff belt, with a diamante buckle at the front, marked the waistline.

A lace effect at the neckline was achieved by diamante trimming. A Juliet cap with orange blossoms, a long veil, lace mittens and white satin shoes, completed the bridal attire. The shower bouquet was composed of pink sweetheart roses, lily of the valley and forget-me-nots.

Miss Wise wore a becoming gown of beige lace and chiffon with lace jacket and brown velvet sash. A small toque of brown velvet with nose veil, brown gloves, beige slippers and matching hosiery were becoming accessories. Her bouquet was of bronze chrysanthemums.

Green silk chiffon over a satiny slip was selected by Mrs. Carter for her dress. Simplicity was the keynote, a scalloped cape being the main trimming. Her small toque was of black velvet, her slippers of black satin, and her lace mittens green. Her hosiery was black. She carried a bouquet of white carnations.

During the signing of the register, Mrs. K. J. Wood sang "O Promise Me," accompanied by Miss McDermid. Mrs. Wood wore a brown dress and hat with shoes and hosiery to match.

At the reception at the home of the bride's parents, Mrs. Mitchell was attired in a gown of grey tulle crepe beaded in silver. Her shoes and hat were of black satin and she wore a corsage of pink roses.

The reception room was decorated in pink and white color scheme, pale pink and white anemones being used in profusion. The tiered cake was embedded in pale green tulle, pink roses as well as tall pink tapers in four silver sconces were employed as table decorations. The bride made the first cut of the wedding cake, Mrs. W. E. B. Monypenny of Trail, later cutting for the guests. Assisting in serving were Miss Mary Bishop and Mrs. S. Gavrilik of Trail, Miss Jean Ballard, Mrs. George Miller and Mrs. O. B. Ballard of Robson. Mrs. C. F. Squires of Robson cut the loaves.

Mr. Mahood proposed the toast to the bride and groom to which Mr. Skelton replied. The groom proposed the bride and groom to which Mr. Carter replied. Toast to the bride's parents was proposed by Mr. Mitchell. To the groom's parents, who were unable to attend, Mr. Mitchell proposed a toast and W. K. Belling, M.P., of Rossland replied.

Mr. and Mrs. Skelton left by car on a honeymoon trip south. They will make their home in Vancouver.

For travelling Mrs. Skelton carried brown tweed sweater suit trimmed with fur. Hat, shoes, hosiery, gloves and purse were in matching tones.

Invited guests from Trail included Rev. L. A. Morant and Mrs. Morant, Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Broderick, Mr. and Mrs. S. C. McDermid, Miss Jean Ballard, Mrs. George Miller, Mrs. O. B. Ballard of Robson, Mrs. C. F. Squires of Robson cut the loaves.

Japan Is Seeking to Put U.S. Out of Pacific

VICTORIA, Oct. 5 (CP).—Japan is now definitely and methodically preparing to put the United States out of the west Pacific picture by force, as she did Russia in 1904, said Union College author and lecturer who passed through Victoria today after a trip to Japan and Hawaii.

"When President Roosevelt authorized resumption of building of the United States navy, the Japanese gave up hope of bluffing and persuading the people of the U.S. to withdraw from the Pacific," he said. "Japan now means business."

The author said he was banned from Manchukuo because of his criticism of Japan's activities in that state.

"The Japanese people have been propagandized to point where they will now not permit any ruling clique to abandon the campaign for domination of China and the Pacific," he asserted. It was high time the people of North America ceased to be deluded by Japanese government officials who declared war with the U.S. was "unthinkable."

No Need to Fear Motherhood

MOTHERHOOD—the crowning joy of every woman's life—is the most beautiful experience life offers.

There is no need to approach motherhood with fear and dread. The period in a woman's life just before her child is born need not be a time of illness and anxiety.

At such a time a woman needs all her strength. It is essential that she must keep in good health and good spirits. She should guard her health for the sacred and wonderful experience that is to be hers.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription does away with worry during pregnancy. It builds up the woman's system, giving her the proper mental outlook and physical well-being that will insure her safety later on.

This medicine nourishes the nervous system and strengthens the body of the expectant mother, which means, of course, that it is also strengthening the baby that is on the way.

At this time, more than any other time in a woman's life, her health is all-important. This tried and true prescription can be purchased at any drug store in either fluid or tablet form.

Read what Mrs. A. W. Ferguson of 8 Wilson Ave., London, Ont., says: "Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription was of great help to me during expectancy. I could not keep food on my stomach, felt generally nervous and depressed, but the 'Favorite Prescription' corrected all this and brought me through this period in good health. My baby was unusually strong and healthy and I give Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription the credit due it. The 'Prescription' has helped my daughter also for 'that tired, nervous, weakened condition.'

Young women need not continue to suffer every month if they will take this Favorite Prescription of Dr. Pierce's—they will find periodic pains are overcome.

Every package of Dr. Pierce's remedies contains a symptom blank, fill it in and mail it to Dr. Pierce's Clinic, Buffalo, N.Y., for free medical advice.

THE COLORS OF THE SKY

"Watch the sky if you wish to know in the primitive and uncompromising state the colors that enrich the earth. Between dawn and sunset we may observe them all. The clouds harbor some of them and in the pools of infinite depth at the back of the clouds are others."

The foregoing is from the Liverpool Post, which adds: "What ineffable browns and greens and blues they are, these that Nature, the supreme artist, has painted in heaven and upon the earth! The lesser artist, man, tries vainly to copy them. It is only in the open air, however, that they come to life, among the element things where, as Alice Meynell wrote, 'the color of life is perfection—in the open air, clothed with the sun, whether the sunshine be golden and direct, or dazling diffused in grey.'"

"To those who properly appreciate Nature's largesse of color it is merely amusing to have a favorite red or blue or green. The same ingredients that are made from soil and rain, air and sun, 'somewhere in the dark habitation of the roots and airy galleries of the leaves,' drape one petal with red and another with blue.

"The colors of the sky are born from the same pigments, so that serious favoritism is really futile. We can but say, as some do, that brown is the most satisfying, being the deep, fertile tint of earth itself; or that green is to be treasured, because it is the emblem of fest and fresh hope.

"Silver, mauve, rose, and lilac—these and many another shade have their admirers, but the grateful-hearted who draw color into their being as they imbibe good air and sunlight think the very least of them more marvelous in its utter simplicity and spontaneity than the most complicated mechanism that the cunning of man has ever invented throughout his conquest of the universe."

THE BIG, BAD WOLF

"Who's afraid of the big, bad wolf?" asks the refrain of the theme song in the latest of silly symphonies created by Walter Disney, who introduced Mickey Mouse to an appreciative world.

The three little pigs, heroes of the cartoon comedy, sing it, thump it on the piano and pipe away at it in defiance of the chop-licking wolf at the door. Overnight "The Big, Bad Wolf" has become the best seller in the United States.

The sudden popularity of a song which is nothing more than a nursery rhyme set to music may mean that the people across the border are returning to the simple life after the 1929 style of sophistication. It may, however, indicate a deeper reaction. It may mean that the country has recovered its courage.

It may mean a realization of victory, although it can hardly be said to contain the note of triumph. The wolf has been kept from the door. The dire collapse which Cassandras have persistently foretold has not come. "Who's afraid of the big, bad wolf?"

"Between You and Me"

By J.B.C.

As Ring Lardner would have said, "the world serious" is getting more serious every day. Here's pulling for the Senators.

Waiters in Brazil become insulted when tips are offered them, says a news story. The average waiter probably regarded these fellows as Brazil nuts.

Having been knocked out in a fight scene on the lot, Clara Bow is now the hit girl of the movies.

Russell Tinkles of Kaslo—I was in a scrap today, J.B.C. Yours truly—Who you fighting with?

Russell—Why Doc Ray Shaw of course.

Ditto—How did it end, Russ? Russ—Oh, in a draw. Just a draw. But boy is my jaw sore.

J.B.C.—Jawoulnt fool me would you big boy.

It is still the desire of most girls to get married, says a heart writer, even though it is a case of "out of the frying pan into the fire."

They would stand a better chance of attaining their wish if they would first get acquainted with the frying pan.

"It's the little things which wreck many a marriage," declares my favorite advice-monger. You bet—especially when the little cusses won't go to sleep at night.

Here and there—A. B. Fleener, the Kaslo dairyman standing at the corner of Baker and Ward—Probably watching the store go by—Col. Fred Lister, independent nominee in the city after a trip through the Salmon valley—W. G. Norrie-Lowenthal and Arthur Lakes in conversation as I passed by—And they were talking about the Queen mine—Bert Whimster waving a "how-de-do" to some one I didn't know—John Skilleorn of Kaslo reported to be in Nelson—Jack Bell in a nice new green sweater coat—A. Morgan—Posting a letter in a corner letter box—George Sparkes wearing what appeared to be a new hat—Jake Rothery perched atop a load of coal—Smiling as he watched Alex Campbell and Benny Gillis, all by himself—Walking around Baker street—A lot of Kaslo people in Nelson—As Thursday is Kaslo's half holiday—and then Marie Dressler always was a Kaslo favorite—

The after-dinner speaker dropped on and on; one man nodded and presently rested his head on the table. The chairman leaned over and tapped him on the head with his gavel.

The delinquent raised his head a little.

"Hit me harder," he said. "I can still hear him."

If it had been acted for the films it would have been funny, but it was just a brief serious drama on the "expressorator," at Highgate, one of the fastest moving stairways of the London underground. When the upward stairway was crowded a man walking up stumbled, lost his balance, fell backward and brought down the man behind him, who in turn overbalanced a man and a woman immediately behind him. In a few moments the whole crowd on the escalator was brought down into a huge huddle, and at the bottom a frightened shouting screaming mass of humanity was struggling to get free of the stairway and each other.

The machinery was stopped at once and it was found no one had been seriously hurt. One man's teeth were smashed. Hats and umbrellas were scattered all over the place, and when the escalator stopped a woman's shoe stood in complete isolation half way up.

Maybe there's something in a name after all. That Michigan policeman who testified against the nutists was named Peck.

Mountford of U.F. Challenges Walley of C.C.F. to Debate

To the Editor— Sir: Will you please print the following letter in the earliest issue of the Nelson Daily News.

Open letter to Dr. G. A. C. Walley, Nelson, B. C.

Dear Sir: We have read in the local press of your nomination as C.C.F. candidate for the Nelson-Creston constituency.

As you are aware that there is already a Workers candidate elected for this constituency in the field, and that your nomination is only splitting the working class vote, we challenge you to debate our United Front candidate, T. E. Mountford, of Wynndel.

The debate subject to be "Resolved that the C. C. F. is not worthy of the support of the workers and farmers."

This debate is to take place as soon as possible and at any place to suit the convenience of both parties to the debate.

We accept full responsibility in arranging this debate, and we shall let the workers and farmers be the jury.

We remain, Respectfully yours, United Front Election Committee, United Front Election Committee secretary, Harry Korbury.

Socialistic Official Replies to Hudson on C.C.F. Program

To the Editor— Sir: You will oblige me if you will publish the following in reply to a letter which appeared in the News of Sept. 28. In this letter A. P. Hudson of Longbeach asked for information in regard to how the C.C.F. proposed to bring about some changes in our system of government.

Mr. Hudson seemed very doubtful as to the ability of the provincial government to bring about any radical improvement without the sanction of the Dominion. If he had questioned Mr. Irvine in this regard he would have received a very satisfactory answer.

We all know that there are a number of things which come directly under federal control and which, I believe, could not be altered or improved upon before the next federal election.

On the other hand we have a great number of things which come directly under the control of the provincial government. Some of them are as follows:

The changing of the constitution of the province, except in regard to the office of the lieutenant governor, direct taxation, the borrowing of money, civil service, lands, prisons, hospitals, asylums and institutions, local works and undertakings, the incorporation of companies for business within the province, property and civil rights, the administration of justice, punishment by fine and imprisonment in case of breaking of provincial law.

The foregoing are merely some of the more important subjects which come under provincial legislation.

I wish to bring the attention of Mr. Hudson and others who may be interested, to the fact that the C.C.F. intend to contest every election in the Dominion as they come around. We recognize that provincial control is not enough but neither is Dominion control alone sufficient. We are fighting to bring about a Cooperative commonwealth in Canada and this coming provincial election is to be the end of the wedge; that is if our efforts are rewarded by success, which I am almost sure they will be, judging by the rapidity with which the C.C.F. is growing.

A C.C.F. provincial government could go a long way toward realization regardless of what government was in power at Ottawa.

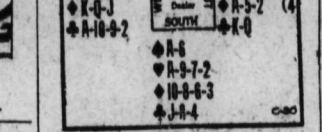

For one thing a program of useful construction could be launched in place of this present wasteful relief system.

Auction and Contract Bridge

By the World's Leading Authority, MILTON K. WORK

AN ACE SHOULD NOT ALWAYS BE WASTED ON A KING

There are times when catching "the big ones" tears the net of the fishermen; it may also ruin the defense of the bridge player. The following hand furnishes an interesting illustration:

After three passes East opened the auction with a bid of one Heart. South passed again and West bid two No Trumps; after North's pass East bid three Hearts. West ventured three No Trumps and East four Hearts. East was obviously correct in insisting upon Hearts as the trump; he had six with four honors in one hand which seemed to assure a bigger game with Hearts the trump than could be expected at No Trump.

South led the Ace of Spades, seemingly the safest lead that his hand contained. North played the Nine—an encouraging card, urging South to continue the suit—and to trick 2 South led a second Spade which North won with the Seven. Seeing all the outstanding Spades in the West (dummy) hand, North did not lead the King which would establish the Queen and might permit the Declarer to obtain a valuable discard, but led a low Spade to trick 3 which might give South the opportunity to make a small trump. That, however, was not in accordance with Declarer's book. He had already lost two tricks and must lose the Ace of trumps. The game would have to be conceded to the adversaries if he permitted South to ruff cheaply. Consequently, he played the King of trumps with the faceted and challenging question: "You best that?" and South with work comment, "I'll never catch anything bigger," played the Ace of trumps. After that the Declarer took the balance of the tricks—making game.

THE CORRECT PLAY South's play of the Ace of trumps over East's King was so hopelessly bad that it thoroughly deserved the heavy loss it produced. With four trumps headed by Ace-K, he could save the game by discarding on this trick. If he had done that, he would have been able to take two trump tricks and defeat the contract without any further assistance from North. His play of the Ace may have been in line with the "Christmas Spirit" but was not apt to be applauded by his partner.

"We should not rest until the term 'trade within the Empire,' so glibly used today, takes on its full significance."—Sir Herbert Austin.

formed away back on November 17, 1931. The C.C.F. club was formed so recently as July of this year.

The Socialist party in Nelson carried on the work of the C.C.F. from its first formation in B. C. until the Nelson club was formed when the party then handed that part of their work to the newly formed club on July 8, 1933.

These dates show that rather than the S.P.C. being invited to the C.C.F. convention, it was the oldest C.C.F. group in Nelson riding and was there as the senior group of the C.C.F.

The spade work done by the local branch of the Socialist party for the C.C.F. has been lost sight of in the present wave of popularity and prosperity that has reached the C.C.F.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

By JAMES W. BARTON, M.D.

HEADACHES FROM TOO MUCH STARCHY FOOD

You may be having headaches regularly and as many headaches come from the eyes or the food. You have your eyes tested and find that they are below normal. The eye specialist tells you that the loss of acute vision is not very great, but that it might be sufficient to cause you headaches.

Your headaches disappear for a short time but return and you are now at a loss as to their cause.

Knowing that constipation is often a factor you establish regular intestinal movements but you still have headaches.

Dr. A. Matland Ramsay, London, reminds us that the eyes are affected by whatever the blood stream carries to them. It is now known that infection from the teeth is the cause of partial loss of eyesight in many individuals due to the poisons carried to the eye.

That certain food stuffs affect various parts of the body is seen in the way some fresh fruits, strawberries particularly, will cause large lumps to form on the skin.

Tomatoes, one of the best foods because of their richness in vitamins, cannot be eaten by others, for the same reason.

Eggs, one of the greatest body builders known, cause an upset in many individuals whether eaten raw, cooked, in cakes or ice cream.

And now it is found that starches—sugar, candy, pastry, cakes—are not handled well by the body if eaten in very large quantities and eye trouble followed by headaches may result.

"Adults who complain of headache, which persists after they have had their vision corrected, are often found reacting to increased amounts of starches—sugars—in the diet. In children inflammation of the eyelids may be traced to eating too much of this kind of food. Many of the children offer feeble resistance to every form of infection, and it is possible that is the way starches are handled in the body that may have something to do with their lack of resistance to ailments.

Remember, starches and sugars must be eaten every day to give heat and energy. It is just possible however that your headaches may be due to eating more than your particular body can handle.

MOYIE AUTO IS IN CRASH

California Car Fails to Stop; Community Club Formed

MOYIE, B. C., Oct. 5.—Golden sunlight days and silver moonlit nights with the lake a placid mirror of beauty and hillside a green, brown and gold kaleidoscope are giving the Moyie people a happy respite from the roaring winds and slashing rains of the past month, perfect Indian summer weather recalling that this is the hunters' month, but as yet there has been nothing doing in the vicinity, game of all kinds being very scarce and shy.
Miss Mary Andrews left for Cranbrook Monday to take a situation with Mrs. H. E. Wheeler.
Mr. and Mrs. Charles Little of Cranbrook were visitors in Moyie Sunday.

An accident occurred about one and a half miles east of Moyie on Sunday afternoon, when a California car collided with a car driven by Mrs. R. A. Smith of Moyie. Mrs. Smith was accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. James.

Mr. and Mrs. Paddy Swan have moved into the house lately occupied by John Kaushney on Government street.
Mr. and Mrs. Babe Leask were Cranbrook visitors at the week-end. There was a well-attended meeting at the home of Mrs. W. E. Andrews on Wednesday night to discuss the possibility of staging a play by local talent during the winter months. After some discussion it was very evident that there was a desire for some kind of community activity and on the suggestion of Harry Hogg a Community club was formed to take care of all forms of entertainment during the fall and winter, the staging of the play to be their first effort.
The following were elected officers of the Moyie Community club: J. W. Fitch, president and treasurer; Harry Hogg, secretary; Mesdames Whitehead, Jewell, Conrad, Crooks, and Jack Andrews, Don Dakin, executive. Messrs Fitch and Hogg were elected directors of the play, rehearsals of which will commence immediately. Other schemes mooted were the formation of a badminton club, also card parties, dances, and a concert and entertainment for the children at Christmas. Arrangements for these were left to the executive to discuss at a later date.

South Slokan Ladies Hostesses at Pretty "At Home"

SOUTH SLOKAN, B. C., Oct. 5.—Mrs. G. F. Chapman, Mrs. W. J. Tindale, and Mrs. W. W. Bennett were joint hostesses at a most charmingly arranged "at home" in the hall of No. 3 plant on Thursday afternoon, when 10 tables of bridge were set and other guests came in for tea. The hall was transformed into a veritable salon of beauty for the occasion. The profusion of flowers used and the exquisite arrangement of same were a feast of loveliness to behold. The color scheme carried out all through was in shades of yellow, orange and bronze, chrysanthemums, zinnias and dahlias being used along with autumn leaves. One side of the hall was arranged in drawing room effect and the prettily set bridge tables were on the other side. The tea table was exquisite in its appointments, with a cloth of ivory lace centred with a large silver bowl of shaded mums and flanked with green and orange tapers in silver sconces. Mrs. W. A. McCabe and Mrs. T. A. Wheldon presided. Mrs. F. B. Hardin and Mrs. P. O. Bird cut the ices. The hostesses were assisted in serving by Miss Maxine Chapman, Miss Rose Ester of Kaslo, Miss Myra Humphry, Miss Elsie Gansner and Miss Doreen Hill.
The prizes for high score at bridge were won by Miss Mrs. Humphry and Mrs. Mabel Rockliffe of Nelson, and a consolation award to Mrs. Roy Graham.

"When all else failed Eagle Brand pulled her through!"

MRS. J. MOONEY, 222 East Eighth St., Hamilton, Ont., writes: "Just before my baby was three months old I found I could not satisfactorily nurse her. For almost two months I tried various milks but none agreed with her. I read different times about Eagle Brand, so I decided to use it. A week showed a difference. Barbara became contented, would go to sleep after her feeding without any fuss and no vomiting. Now at 7 months she is just average weight, bright, active, and so contented, which means so much to a busy mother of four active children."

If you are unable to nurse your own baby, follow the advice of hundreds of thousands of mothers and try Eagle Brand. The coupon below will bring you full informative literature.

O'GRADY HEADS ORIGINALS CLUB

Members From All Over District Hold Banquet at the Legion

Members of the district "Originals club," red chevron holders, composed of the men of the First Canadian contingent who sailed from Gaspe Bay on the third of October, 1914, held their annual meeting and banquet in the Legion hall Tuesday evening. Representatives from Trail, Rosland, Gray Creek, Kaslo, Castle, Robson, Queens Bay, Willow Point and Nelson, numbering 25, were in attendance.

At the business session B. T. O'Grady was elected president; J. Hirst, first vice-president; H. L. Howe, second vice-president; G. K. Ashby secretary-treasurer. Letters and telegrams were received from various points in Canada.

Sir Arthur Currie sent the following telegram:

"Please thank my old comrades for remembering me and give them my affectionate greetings. Please say to them that the qualities of sacrifice and service, unselfishness and humanity, justice and courage, fidelity to duty and bearing of one another's burdens so courageously shown over there are as necessary in the difficult times of the present."

Victor W. Odium wired—"Greetings to all old Seventh comrades assembled tonight. Time cannot kill happy memories or old friendships and loyalties."

The banquet commenced about 8:30 and was opened by a minute's silence. The evening's program included old army songs, Fred Hartwig acting as pianist.

Prior to the banquet J. Hirst of Procter, who retired from the office of president at the meeting, placed a wreath on Major Rigby's tablet at the city hall.

Members fell in and marched to the cenotaph led by the Canadian Legion Bugle band, headed by Claude Miller and S. Langill. Mr. Hirst placed a second wreath on the cenotaph and the "Last Post" was sounded by S. Langill. Wreaths were made by Mrs. G. K. Ashby.

DOMINION HATCHERY HERE PUT OUT 1,750,000 FISH

Of Four Species Handled, Kokanees Constitute Two-Thirds of Total; Kamloops Trout From Outside Went to Lardo Plant

Operations of the Dominion fish hatchery at Nelson for the 1932-33 season resulted in the production and distribution of 1,757,804 embryo fish in the form of eyed eggs or fry, according to figures made available by Superintendent H. C. Crawford.

This total embraced 1,201,907 red-fish or kokanees, 130,512 eastern brook trout, 338,405 mountain Kamloops trout—until recently referred to as mountain trout—and 86,980 cutthroat trout.

Of the kokanees, 540,000 eyed eggs were sent to other hatcheries, 300,000 of them for the research to see whether the resulting fry, if given access to the sea, will develop as sockeyes.

The remainder, of all species, were practically all deposited in Kootenay Boundary waters.

While the hatchery handled no Kamloops trout eggs, the Gerraard hatchery, which was the local source of supply, having been shut down, 300,000 eyed eggs were received from outside sources for the eying station at Lardo, and placed in district waters.

Details of the distribution from the Nelson hatchery are as follows:

STAR OF EARTH

By Octavus Roy Cohen

CHAPTER ONE

Jim Hanvey drew an easy chair to the window, settled into it with a vast sigh of contentment and stared down upon the glitter of Hollywood boulevard.

It was now 10 o'clock at night. He was a large and lethargic gentleman; too ample of girth. His face was exceedingly broad and fleshy, and the tiny eyes seemed habitually half closed, as though their owner was about to indulge in slumber. He seemed completely lacking in energy—either physical or mental. He seemed, in fact, to be everything save what he was.

Jim Hanvey was a detective, and was known to high-class confidence men and swindlers from coast to coast. A bonding company had sent him to Hollywood to investigate certain irregularities in the financial department of New Art Pictures Corporation. Martin Glynn, manager of West Coast Productions for that concern, had suspected that all was not as it should be and reported the matter to the bonding company. Jim's sleepy eyes were questing down the impressive expanse of Hollywood boulevard when the telephone rang. He rose with difficulty, waddled over to the taboret, lifted the receiver and drawled a somewhat annoyed "Hello" into the transmitter.

The voice which came to him from the other end was as cold and brittle as snapping icicles.

"Hanvey?"

"Th-huh."

"This is Martin Glynn."

Martin Glynn, New Art's production manager, was never prodigal with words.

"I wish to see you. Immediately."

Meet me in front of the Talbot in 15 minutes. I'll pick you up in my car. Something's wrong at the studio, and you've got to help out."

There was a brief pause. "And say—while you're waiting buy an evening paper and read about Tansie Wilson's marriage, will you? He married Iris Randall suddenly this afternoon, and it seems to have started a lot of trouble."

Hanvey whistled softly and expressively. "Iris Randall!" he repeated, half to himself. "Gosh!"

If I could marry a woman like that trouble wouldn't bother me a bit."

He heard the receiver click impatiently at the other end.

Hanvey paid no particular attention to the din in the hotel lobby. He tossed a quarter on the news counter and asked for all of the Los Angeles papers. Then he lowered himself into a wing chair, and became immersed in an article which leaped at him from under an eight-column headline:

TANSIE WILSON MARRIED SUD- DENLY TO IRIS RANDALL.

All Hollywood is gossiping about the unexpected marriage of Tansie Wilson, newest and most successful New Art film star, and Miss Iris Randall, his blonde and beautiful leading woman, which was solemnized quietly at the beautiful apartment of the bride.

No more pictures have ever carved a niche for himself in Hollywood. Born and bred in the wilds of the Kentucky mountains, he originally appeared on the screen in an old silent classic called "Wild Hearts," which was his boyhood. Not only was it his first picture, but never before that time had he ever seen a picture camera or a screen drama.

"Wild Heart" was a sensational success, due partly to its novelty and partly to the very excellent work of Tansie Wilson and Gloria Hale, the beautiful young mountain girl who played opposite him with charming simplicity. The picture was bought and released by New Art who immediately brought both young people to the coast under long-term optional contracts.

From the first Tansie Wilson gave unmistakable evidence that she was the screen find of the year. After one picture his career was renewed and it is understood that New Art has been paid considerably more than the very modest amount called for in the contract. Gloria Hale did not fare so well, and after two pictures was dropped by New Art. It is understood that she is working on a picture which is being cameraed by Stuart Trent, the man who discovered both Tansie and Wilson, and who filmed "Wild Hearts."

The advent of talking pictures, which was expected to sound the death knell of Wilson's screen career, merely served to increase his popularity. His soft, drawling voice; his mountain accent; and his shy, hesitating manner of speech intensified the romantic appeal which had made him heavy box office in the silent days.

The bride, Iris Randall, has been in pictures for many years. She is a statuesque blonde who is generally conceded to be one of the half dozen most beautiful women in Hollywood.

Owing to the fact that she is completing a picture for New Art, and at present are engaged in night shooting on the lot, they will not embark on a honeymoon for a week or more.

Only one paragraph, found in another paper, added to the detective's fund of knowledge.

By queer coincidence it happens that Miss Gloria Hale and Stuart Trent—who discovered both Miss Hale and Tansie Wilson—are at work on the New Art lot. Miss Hale is being directed in her new picture by Karl Bergdorf, a former assistant director, who—for a brief space of time—wielded the megaphone for Tansie Wilson. Mr. Trent is handling the camera for this independent production which is shooting at night on one of the huge sound stages rented from New Art. Until the marriage of this afternoon it had been generally understood that a romance had existed between Miss Hale and Tansie Wilson, the two youngsters from the Kentucky mountains.

An insistent automobile horn roused Hanvey from his literary pursuits. He glanced across the Spanish lobby and onto Hollywood boulevard.

A long, low, cream-colored car was at the curb. Hanvey wedged himself in beside Martin Glynn, and the latter moved into the traffic.

After a brief silence, Glynn spoke abruptly.

"Hell of a mess at the studio."

"That so?"

"Yes. Trouble brewing."

"What's connected with my case?"

"No."

"Then—"

"Don't argue, Hanvey. You're a detective, and you can keep your mouth shut. I'm asking you as a personal favor to find out what's wrong—and to stop it before it happens."

"I'll help," Hanvey said slowly.

"Good! Did you read the papers?"

"I can."

"This Randall is hard as nails and gorgeously beautiful. She's been on the make for Tansie Wilson ever since it became certain that he was going to be successful. Now she has landed him."

"Then he, at least, should be happy."

"Should be—yes. But he isn't."

"Meaning what?"

"Just this," snapped Glynn. "This is Wilson's wedding day. He's at work right this minute finishing up a picture in which Iris is his leading lady. But would you tell me that you ever since he went on the set tonight he has been acting like a crazy man—and that for more than two hours he has been carrying a gun?"

"Who told you?"

"Should be—yes. But he isn't."

"Who's he?"

"The man who is directing Tansie Wilson's picture. Just now they're doing night shooting. A little before eight Shannon got me by the dinner table to say something had hit Tansie; he was acting loco."

"How?"

"Like he was afraid of something. I told Steve to watch—and keep me posted. A while ago he telephoned to say that Tansie was carrying a revolver, and that it was loaded. Furthermore, that he was expecting to use it. Minute he's through rehearsing he beats it for some dark spot and sits there."

"What does he say about it?"

"Nothing—except that he wants to go home."

"Is there another company doing night work on the lot now?"

"Yes, an independent. We're renting them a sound stage for night work."

"Isn't Gloria Hale in that company?"

"Yes."

"How are things between Miss Hale and Wilson?"

A slight frown corrugated Glynn's forehead. "I don't know," he answered carefully. "She's the girl who work with him in the first picture they made. Born and raised with him in Kentucky and when they came out here it was understood that they were engaged. Stuart Trent has been educating her."

"Isn't he the guy who made 'Wild Hearts'?"

"The same—and one of the ace cameramen of the colony. After Gloria flopped in her first picture, we finally gave Trent the megaphone to try her in a feature. The pic-

HOW C. C. F. THINKS!

By J. T. BEALBY

By J. T. Bealby

The C. C. F. herald their appearance on the political theatre of Canada with three or four propositions which at the best are less than half true or in fatal collision with established facts. I propose to examine one of these. It is the proposition, that capitalism is responsible for the great mass of unemployment which exists in the world at the present time. A person who in cold blood can utter such a proposition is like a man who should dogmatize about the whole world on the strength of the small portion of it which he is able to perceive from a narrow slit through three-foot thick walls, or like him who should make a one-pound slice out of a big wheel cheese and declare, "There, that is the whole cheese."

There is just about the same degree of warranty in fact for all three propositions. For the great mass of unemployment that exists in the world the cause must be sought in part industrial. That is the world, not causes restricted to this Dominion. In point of fact those causes are many, and they interlock and react one upon the other. Capitalism in the Usonian meaning of that word is only one of these causes. I proceed to cite facts in support of my contention. Just said, the C. C. F. do, namely make bald and sweeping assertions pass for established truth.

Since the Great War of 1914-18 several nations have changed the mode in which their national energies find expression: they have ceased to be wholly or predominantly agricultural, and have become in part industrial. That is the way human civilization is tending. There are more than half a score of these new industrial nations—Poland, Switzerland, Belgium, Czechoslovakia, Italy, Norway, being the more noticeable. As a consequence commercial competition has been intensified in these countries, and they have been forced to have trade relations, one result being unemployment. This chain of successive events arose as an aftermath of the war, and owed its start to national policies occasioned by exhaustion of purchasing power. In these industrial nations the true sequence of causation has been—cause, the Great War and national policies; effects, loss of markets and unemployment.

The policy of raising high tariff walls in order to foster home industries and preserve for them a home market, a policy which resulted in over-production and unemployment—that again is due as much to political policy as to Big Industry. It is perfectly obvious, that no single capitalist and no combination of capitalists could be powerful enough in any country to impose high tariffs which would cause higher prices for home-produced commodities, against the will of the democratic worker voters. Legislation is always, and in democratic communities must be, an expression of the will of the electorate. An American journalist, a man of an acute and original way of thinking and not wedded to theories, says: "It is trivial to say that the industrial system (i. e. capitalism) is to blame for the depression. Unemployment is no more the problem of industry than it is the problem of society at large." A survey which takes the manifest facts into account must lead to this opinion.

Lippman, an American journalist with a nation-wide reputation that has spread to Europe as well, summed up the situation clearly and comprehensively in the New York Herald Tribune two years ago. Even before the depression the three great industrial nations in the world were leading a crazy economic existence. The British were living on their inheritance. The Germans were piling up debts to pay their debts (reparations etc.). We were piling up loans to pay ourselves. How did we come to do these things? We drifted into them by adopting national economic policies which have thrown all three national economic systems out of balance. The Germans were saddled with the reparations debts. The British were hemmed in on all sides by tariff walls. And we set ourselves the impossible task of collecting the money for our surplus exports, and the money on the war-debts, and the money on our foreign investments, while we raised a prohibitive tariff. Other governments did equally unworkable things; and the combination of all of them has produced, not a mere cyclical depression, but a radical dislocation of the economic structure of the whole world. A fine statesmanlike statement, showing wide knowledge and a true insight into the working of economic laws.

One of the most fruitful causes of the unemployment is of course the swift spread of power-driven machinery as an auxiliary helper of man-power in productive industry. That, however, is but an incident in the progressive development of human society, and in no sense of the word can it be tacked as an effect upon capitalism as a cause. It is science, especially applied science, realizing itself in research and invention, which is mainly responsible for a large part of the unemployment arising out of this unprecedented activity of the human intellect. You can only lay the blame at the door of capitalism, if you are able to affirm that capitalism foresees the nature and inevitable consequences of this development, and dictated to science the direction in which it should carry on its researches and the detailed forms they should assume. And it is to be remembered, that labour itself at first clamoured for this machine-help, because it enabled them to earn higher wages, and because it cheapened the prices of so many commodities that labour buys, and labour still continues to clamour for it because it relieves them of much hard drudgery. All that capitalism has done has been to respond to the demands of labour and to avail itself of a quicker and easier means of production which came to its hand unsought. It has been calculated that the machine increased the labour force of the U. S. by no less than 33,000,000 pairs of hands. No wonder then there was unemployment in that country!

Politics were chiefly responsible for the terrible catastrophe of the war of 1914-18, with its aftermath of economic chaos and social and political upheavals. This, notwithstanding Germany's denial of war-guilt, can be readily proved from German official and semi-official evidence. Capitalism as such had nothing to do with all that train of destructive consequences, consequences of which we have by no means yet reached the end.

Another very powerful cause tending to create unemployment, and especially to prevent re-employment, is the extravagance and spendthrift policies of governments, chiefly showing itself in heavy taxation, crippling the power of employers to pay or to maintain the usual volume of labour. The governments are, however, blame only in part. The real impulse towards reckless spending has come from the democratic people themselves, not the least from the ranks of those earning the smaller wages. The objects—this is particularly deserving of attention—for which these excessive expenditures have been forced upon governments—are mostly social services, precisely the same sort of objects that the C. C. F. are proposing to render on an enormously vaster scale, and of course at an unprecedentedly enormous vaster public cost, while one class is to derive the lion's share of the benefit, while other classes are to suffer.

The League of Nations, having conducted a World Economic Survey with regard to these matters in 1931-32, thus reports, "The general drift of the public utility and social services is almost inevitably in the direction of redistributing income in favour of the poorer classes. A great part of the real income of everybody is now furnished by community services, but this part is naturally greater in the case of smaller incomes. Taxation on the other hand is progressive on the larger incomes. The provision of an increasing range of public services provided a larger real income for a great number of the lower-paid members of a community, partly at the expense of the wealthier. This fact is clearest in the case of such direct payments as pensions, family allowances, unemployment relief, medical attendance, old age support, and so forth." In Great Britain between 1910 and 1929 the amount expended out of taxes for social services increased from $315,000,000 to $1,219,750,000, an increase in 19 years of nearly 280 percent. In the U. S. before the war every man worked on the average 25 days in the year to pay his share of the country's taxation; in 1932 he worked 61 days for the same purpose (President Hoover). In Germany in 1931 complaints were common that government expenditures amounted to 50 per cent of the entire national income, very largely because of social services which had been extorted by the people during the preceding 12 years. During that period wages had doubled, taxes had increased three and a half times, social services were quadrupled. Last year in B. C. the provincial expenditure for social services absorbed nearly $10,000,000 out of $24,000,000, and in addition a goodly slice of the $10,000,000 which went to pay interest and sinking fund on public debts incurred in previous years, debts due in part to social services granted. I wonder what our descendants are going to say to all this load of debt which we are adding them with simply in order that we ourselves may live more comfortably and more easily.

Another circumstance which has contributed appreciably to the volume of unemployment is the migration of population from the rural districts into the towns. It is a movement that would have started all together apart from the concentration of factories in urban centres, partly as a consequence of the rapid growth of populations, partly due to quicker and cheaper means of communication, partly to the prevalence of general education amongst the masses, partly to the demand for amusements that towns only can provide, but chiefly to the general quickening of intelligence—a sort of mass Renaissance, as it were. For all this capitalism is only to a limited extent responsible. But one effect of it has been to cut down the purchasing power of the rural districts by removing the farmer's markets to a distance and cutting down the net prices returned to him for his produce. Governments have helped to bring about this unfavorable position of the farmer, seeing that they have made it their concern to help the townsmen, where the preponderance of voting power lay, to obtain food and clothing cheaper at the expense of the fewer rural voters.

Yet another fertile source of unemployment meets the attention in the insane craze for speculation, gambling, and getting things for nothing, a craze that seized upon labour as much as it seized, relatively, upon the wealthy. The winners in these games of hazard are the few; the losers are the many. The latter were in many instances forced to curtail business operations and displace employees. Yet another hydra-headed monster of the same species lurks in the tangled thickets of fakery, trickery, sharp practice, unfair competition, price-cutting, fashion-and-shoddy-mongering, unscrupulous manufacturers, wholesalers, and retailers—all lending in various degrees to a whitening down of purchasing power amongst the general public, and more especially amongst the original suppliers of raw materials, whether food and other necessities or otherwise.

Instalment buying, though not quite a new device of manufacturers and their salesmen, was during the boom years pushed to almost incredible lengths. The spending public were quite as much "buying-mad" as the capitalists were "profiting-mad." The anonymous journalist I have already quoted, says, "We moderns are like savages. In a season of plenty we gorge and dance and spend in a spirit of uncontrollable extravagance. One lean year gives us trouble; two or three in succession involve us in disaster, no matter how many fat seasons may just have passed." How true? The people most affected by the seductive machinations of instalment buying were wage-earners and people of moderate means. When the crash came, billions (3 to 8 in U. S.) of indebtedness stood on business books against those classes. Instalment buying is of course buying with unearned income, that is to say with credit, in this particular instance buying with debt. All that indebtedness could have been avoided and used as a reserve against the time of adversity. Capitalism was not responsible for the lack of foresight, thrift, and self-control on the part of people who bought often what they could not afford to buy.

I would remind the C. C. F. leaders that unemployment on a considerable scale existed long before the capitalist system was known in the world. One of the causes of the downfall of ancient Rome was the large number of free citizens who were able to live without working for their bread and who had so much leisure that they had to be kept amused with spectacular shows to prevent them from getting into mischief. Hence the phrase panes et circenses—bread and circuses. In an act of Parliament of the 18th year of Queen Elizabeth of England's reign (1575) unemployment is alluded to (chapter 3), and there were no capitalists then. During the 18th and 17th centuries all the roads of Central Europe swarmed with vagabonds, strollers, beggars, tramps—many varieties of unemployment, so much so that the monarchies were hard put to it to provide food and other bare necessities for them all. As I am not want to make positive statements without having good grounds for what I say, I may add, that my warrant for this statement is the wonderful series of etchings—hundreds of them—left by a contemporary French engraver, Jacques Callot, which I saw many years ago in the Old Town-gate Museum of Nancy, the capital of Lorraine. I can also refer to a monograph crammed with illustrations from old books and MSS. entitled "Fahrende Leute" (People of the Roads or Itinerant Folk), by Theodor Hampe (Leipzig, 1902).

I grant you willingly, that Big Business and mass production, business combines, market monopolies, corporations operating multiple industries, mail-order houses, chain stores and the like have all run to great excess in making profits; but have they not fed the masses with cheap commodities to their great satisfaction? Also, the functions of credit have been stretched with the object of quickening and multiplying the processes of profit-making. But these phases are not normal to the system, any more than the dictatorship of Mussolini, Pilsudski, and Hitler are normal to the democratic constitution of society. Would the C. C. F. propose to abolish democratic forms of civilized existence as the cure for Mussolini, Pilsudski, and Hitler? The correct description of such socio-economic evils as can be properly laid to the door of capitalism is to look upon them as abuses, extravagances, excesses, abuses—in a word, diseases of the system. They owe their origin to the break-down of the traditional moral restraints by which for centuries men had been walled to govern their business relations, however imperfectly. If your automobile brakes cease to act when you are travelling at 40 miles an hour, and an accident ensues, you don't dream of discarding your automobile and flinging it incontinently on the scrap-heap. Or when an airplane engine suddenly ceases to function and the pilot crashes, nobody proposes to sweep away aeronautics altogether. So in like manner when the well-tried moral restraints and checks against business abuse and excess suddenly fail to act as they should (through faulty education for the most part), it is both foolish and illogical to propose the abolition of the system, instead of applying remedies. Wage earners and people of small means are responsible equally with capitalists and world events for the unemployment and distress from which the world is now suffering. The diagnosis which the C. C. F. make is faulty and unscientific; consequently the remedies which it proposes fall to touch the disease. The state of the patient after such quick-doctor-like treatment is extremely likely to be very much worse for such tinkering instead of better.

Outstanding events of the past teach us, that historical continuity can be broken or seriously interrupted only at the cost of grave consequences to the body politic. One of these is violent reaction. A case in point is the imposition of Prohibition in the U. S. and the overwhelming reaction which is now taking place there. Had the prohibitionists gone to work gradually, and striven to cure or amend the worst evils of the drink traffic, the results of their efforts would in all probability have been sound and permanent, as similar efforts have been in Britain, Sweden, Norway, Finland, and other countries. U. S. proffered a complete break, and now we see the result, which may well be worse than the original evil. Prohibition was designed to amend, to say nothing of the crime making, racketeering, bootlegging and so on which Prohibition itself brought in its train. Let the C. C. F. take warning from that warning on the wall, lest worse befall them.

ture was terrible and so was she. It was never released."

"Then how come," asked Hanvey, "that she's acting now?"

Martin Glynn chuckled. "Blame that on Karl Bergdorf."

"I'm willing. But who is he?"

"A would-be director who thinks he's a genius. Maybe he is; I don't know. He's a foreigner; slim, fascinating to women, utterly selfish and hard as chilled steel. He was very friendly with Tansie Wilson from the first, and through Wilson, we gave him a picture of the kid's to direct. Then Wilson had a change of heart and insisted that he be taken off. We kicked him out, Steve Shannon finished the picture, and it was a riot. Bergdorf claimed it was his picture, and that we had stolen the credit from him."

"Why did Tansie Wilson change over?"

"Lord knows—but studio gossip has it that Iris Randall didn't care to share Tansie with anybody. Rumor also informs me that she and Bergdorf were very friendly before that, and that they had entered into a partnership to exploit Wilson for their own good. Iris may have decided that there wasn't enough of him to go 'round. This Bergdorf has a world of force, and it may be that she was afraid if the picture was a success we'd give Bergdorf a long term contract as director, in which case she'd share the control of Tansie Wilson with Karl Bergdorf then went to Stuart Trent with the proposition to put himself and Gloria Hale across. He was branded as a failure. We dropped Gloria from our payroll. If then, Bergdorf could successfully make a picture with her, and on limited capital, we would have to admit that he had plenty of ability."

Hanvey whistled softly. "Gloria Hale in love with Tansie Wilson. Wilson suddenly committing matrimony with Iris Randall. Iris Hale straight-shootin' Kentuckian from the old countings—ain't it possible Tansie might be a bit nervous about her?"

"Sure it's possible."

"In addition to that you describe this Bergdorf to me as a man who has been rolled by Iris Randall. He figures that Tansie belongs half to him. Up to this afternoon he believes that he can straighten things out with Iris—and now, bloated she up and marries Tansie, which sends her to check Bergdorf out. He's cold enough and mad enough, he might decide to pot-shot Tansie—or Iris."

Glynn eyed his companion sharply. "I never thought of that."

"What?"

"That Tansie might be carrying the gun to protect herself."

"All I want you to do," Glynn added seriously, "is to watch—and find out what's up. A man doesn't pack a gun except for one reason: that is because he expects to be forced to use it."

U. S. Steel Common Declines Point and Half on Wall Street

By JOHN L. COOLEY

NEW YORK, Oct. 5 (AP)—Stocks today were unable to follow up the rally of their previous market and with commodities sagging the list drifted to a lower close. Volume, however, contracted on the decline, sales being reduced to 1,640,520 shares.

Wheat lost more than a cent and corn about two cents, while cotton was off around a dollar a bale. Bonds, on the other hand, strengthened. Dollar exchange was mostly firm, advancing against European monies during most of the day. Shares appeared to have been rather tired by their exertions of yesterday and the market found itself without aggressive support.

Lake Shore Hits a New All-Time High

TORONTO, Oct. 5 (CP)—Strong only in spots, the Standard mining market nevertheless rolled up a heavy volume of trade today with high priced and secondary gold shares taking the lead. Lake Shore was a feature, closing at $0.45, up 45 cents to a new all-time high mark.

Dome closed at $0.25, up 1.75. Barlone lost 25 cents. Hollinger gained 10, Pioneer gained 50 cents, McIntyre dropped $1.

Teck Hughes lost 5 cents and Wright Hargreaves closed unchanged.

Senators Hit Stride to Blank Giants in First Home Game

FIFTY WHITEHILL GETS FINE SUPPORT IN BRINGING WORLD SERIES TO TWO-TO-ONE COUNT

Fielders of Both Teams Play Superb Ball; Winners Take 2-0 Lead in First Inning; Myer Gets 3 Hits; Giants Hit Solidly at Times

By ALAN GOULD
(Associated Press Sports Editor).

GRIFFITH STADIUM, Washington, Oct. 5 (AP).—The prodigal baseball sons of Washington celebrated their return to home grounds today by shutting out New York Giants, 4-0, under the inspiration of Earl Whitehill's great southpaw pitching.

Despite pre-game showers and a chilly breeze that kept the field, President Franklin D. Roosevelt, his baseball sympathies somewhat divided, joined a crowd of 25,727 spectators in watching the Senators snap out of their world series slump.

After being buffeted and completely outplayed for two straight games, Senators gave a dashing, pep-up exhibition on their own ballfield. They belatedly fat Freddy Simmons, the Giants' veteran tackle-baller, for a three-run lead the first two innings and then steered along confidently to their victory behind Whitehill's masterly left-handed strategy.

PERFECT CONTROL
Whitehill, the top-ranking member of the Washington staff this year, held the heretofore rollicking rampant Giants to five well-ribbed hits, including Travis Jackson's booming double. The Senators' southpaw had superb control, allowing only three runners to advance as far as third base and thoroughly throttled the Giants' big boppers.

Altogether it was a great day for the Senators. They got the hitting breaks for the first time in a long while. Myer, "goat" of the first time with three errors, led today's attack with two singles and a double. The Washington second baseman scored the first run, which proved to be sufficient, and over in two more for good measure.

DEBELL ON DECK
The Giants had no alibis whatever. They still hold command, with a 2-0 lead. They have lost some of their confidence and they shoot the works tomorrow with their ace southpaw, Carl Hubbell. He subdued the Senators in the opening game. For the Senators, the Weaver, the former University of Virginia professor and a fast-batter, is slated to pitch. The Senators had the puddy Fitzsimmons on his heels and the crowd's feet yelling at the very out. As it turned out, the game was won with a single to left, Goose Goslin, doubled against the right field and two runs were scored on his infield out and Schulte's double into right field.

DOUBLE PRODUCE RUNS
Doubles by Bluege and Myer in second inning produced the third run. Both were shots that skimmed along the foul lines. Bluege's infield and Myer's past first base. Fitzsimmons settled down for the fifth inning he worked before being hit by Pinch-Hitter Peel and Myer Pitcher Bell in the eighth. The Senators, who collected nine hits altogether, did not threaten until the seventh. Sewell's single single through Ryan's legs, stolen base for the Senator pitcher due to a poor throw by Mancuso in an attempt to nip well off first base, Whitehill's field out and Myer's third hit counted for the final run.

CONNECT SOLIDLY
The Giants meanwhile connected with Whitehill's fast balls solidly at times but not when a hit would up a run. Myer Manager Terry failed to guess anything resembling a hit the pinches. In the third, with a on first and third, Big Bill's was a hard grounder to Joe Schulte. Again in the eighth with a on second and third, Terry hit a fly to Sewell in front of plate and the Giants' leader saw his bat into the ground in error.

Jackson doubled, with two out, in fourth, and Ott walked to first, reaching third on two big grounders handled by Bluege. The Giants could not break through Whitehill's superb defence.

Peel up—Peel singled sharply over Cronin's head.

Moore up—Moore rolled to Cronin who made a bad fumble for an error and all hands were safe with Peel on second and Moore on first. It had looked like an easy double play.

LEAGUE LEADERS HAVE TOUGH JOB

LONDON, Oct. 5 (CP cable).—Totenham Hotspurs, the promoted club now holding a tie for second place in the first division of the English league, entertained Sunderland Saturday and for the first time in his history will be under captaincy of a Tottenham-born player.

He is Roe, who replaces Felton in the captaincy because the latter has not yet recovered from the injury he received in last week's tilt with Chelsea.

The league-leading Portsmouth eleven travel to Leicester City for a tough assignment, while Huddersfield Town, bracketed with Spurs only a point back of Portsmouth, have an equally hard job in meeting Aston Villa on the Villan's grounds.

The Arsenal league champions, will take 13 players to Blackburn for the third game with the Rovers, including Jack and James.

Bolton Wanderers entertain Oldham Athletic and have no fear about losing their leadership of the second division. Preston North End travel to Manchester United's grounds.

MANAGERS DODGE ISSUE IN PINCH

MANAGERS OFTEN REFUSE TO GIVE SIGNS IN A PINCH, AND THEN 'SECOND-GUESS' IF PLAY GOES WRONG.

WHY DIDN'T YOU LOOK AROUND AT ME FOR A SIGN?

I DID!! BUT YOU WOULDN'T LOOK UP AND GIVE ME ONE.

AL DEMAREE

By AL DEMAREE
Managers often are afraid to decide on certain plays that come up in a world series and shift the responsibility upon the players' shoulders, always reserving their vested privilege of "second guessing."

Many a player who had been warned in advance by the manager not to make a move up at the plate without authority from the bench, has looked in vain for a sign.

The manager was either looking up at the sky, or at the ground or taking a drink of water. In fact he would be looking everywhere but at the player up at bat.

If the play turned out successfully, everything was dandy, but if it went wrong the player was accused of not obeying signals.

Foolish people these managers! But after you've played ball ten years, the sun gets you.

"We'll Be Tough From Now on" Says Washington Owner

Cronin Will Pitch Weaver Today; Hubbell on Giants' Mound

By TED VOSBURGH
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5 (AP).—From Clark Griffith and Joe Cronin down to the bat boy, the Senators served notice tonight that they were back in the battle for the world's championship. The Cronin-led gang has its dander up.

"We'll be tough from now on," exclaimed the veteran Washington owner, Griffith, as he looked around the dressing room after the game. "We play ball that way. When we hit a streak we just keep right on going."

His young shortstop-manager, Cronin, said "We came back didn't we?" "Whitehill looked superb," he said, with a nod toward the showers where the big-chested, toule-headed southpaw was sending the water flying and wearing the smile that won't come off.

"I'm going to pitch Weaver tomorrow."

SHOOT HUBBELL IN
Over in the Giants' dressing room Memphis Bill Terry looked just a bit worried. He said he was going to shoot Carl Hubbell against the Senators tomorrow with the famous southpaw "screwball" that had them swinging and missing in the opening game on Tuesday.

"Whitehill was just too good for us today," said Terry. "Fitzsimmons was pitching well enough to win an ordinary game but Whitehill was having a big day. He stopped Ott and he stopped me and we couldn't get our attack under way."

BATH, England, Oct. 5 (CP cable).—Hampshire won the county rugby championship today, defeating Somerset 6-3 in a tight struggle.

John Cartmel Heads Nelson
Badminton Club; Vote on Applications

The badminton bug has grown to overwhelming proportions in Nelson. The game has gained such popularity that the number of floors available are far too inadequate to meet the demands. Each year the memberships of the various clubs have grown steadily and this year practically every club in the city has put a limit to the number which it will receive. In many cases the clubs have long waiting lists to draw from.

One of the clubs, which has prospered to the extent of having a long waiting list, is the Nelson Badminton club. Monday evening the club held a well attended meeting when applications were considered and voted on. Vacancies in the club's membership were filled in this manner.

J. Cartmel heads the club for this season having been elected to office Monday. Other officers include Miss Jean Gilker, vice-president; H. D. Dawson, secretary; G. Warner, treasurer; Dr. T. H. Bourque, T. Roaling and Miss Helen Murphy, executive members.

"Big League"
BOWLING

By AL DEMAREE

"Spot bowlers" and most great bowlers are "spot bowlers," pick out a certain "spot" on the alley just in front of the fowl line to lay their ball. They concentrate on that "spot" to the exclusion of the pins. The object of this is to find a "spot," after delivering several preliminary balls with exactly the same speed, that will bring their ball into the pocket between the "one-three" pins. When they have located this "spot," they look at it and nothing else, until the ball is almost upon the pins.

It is the same principle as the golfer concentrating upon the ball when he is driving or putting and not looking at the fairway or cup until the ball is well away.

FABER PITCHES SOX TO A WIN

CHICAGO, Oct. 5 (AP)—Old Uncle Urdan Faber today showed the Cubs some of the reasons why he is still pitching in the American league after 20 years of service. Scheming every pitch and mastering near perfect control the 45-year-old sore top blanked the fallen champions of the National league with a great five-hit performance, to give the White Sox a 2-0 victory over their north side rivals and their second straight victory in the battle for the city series championship.
